President's Son and Boston Debutante Exchange Vows in Historic Church

Blue Bloods of New England, Washington's Leading Statesmen Fill Auditorium

NAHANT, Mass., June 18—(UP)—The youngest Roosevelt of the presidential family was married today by the clergyman who united his mother and father more than 30 years ago.

John Aspinwall Roosevelt took as his bride Anne Lindsay Clark of Boston, blond New England debutante.

A socially-elect gathering crowded the century-old Nahant union church as a simple Episcopal ceremony was read by Dr. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton school. The President of the United States and Mrs. Roosevelt watched from the front pew. Other members of the Roosevelt clan turned out in force.

The service was brief. It was held in the gray stone church in this village which at times serves as the worshipping place for the Cabots and the Lodges. Hundreds of curious New Englanders gathered outside for a glimpse of the bride and bridegroom.

There was not even a candle on the altar, although the Episcopal service was used. The Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherill, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, aided in the ceremony, delivering the benediction.

Filled by Socialities

The ivy-clad church was crowded with persons whose names are by-words in the social blue books. They were augmented by those of men and women and women high in government position.

The President occupied the right-hand front pew with members of his immediate family. Across from him were the Clarks. Mr. Roosevelt was in formal morning dress.

The bride entered by the left aisle while the organ swelled to the music of the "Lohengrin" Wedding March. She was attended by her sister, Sally, 18. As she approached the rostrum she was met by John, who was attended by his brother, Franklin Jr.

They knelt as the ceremony was performed. The couple left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Russell Sturgis of Sumter. Her father, a Boston broker, F. Haven Clark, died in 1936.

The single ring ceremony was used and the ring itself as a plain gold band. The bride, true to her promise to wear "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue," wore her mother's diamond bracelet.

Anne wore an embroidered white organdy wedding gown with tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the val-

NEW YORK, June 18—(UP)—Babe Ruth, former home run king of baseball, today accepted a position as coach for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Terms of the contract were not announced but Ruth said he was to receive $15,000 for the balance of the season.

Ruth, since his release by the Boston Braves after he had left the New York Yankees, had waited long for a chance to return to major league baseball.

Last night the deal was closed which many believed will eventually make him manager of the Dodgers.

Ruth's contract was for the rest of this season. Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn manager, also has a contract which expires this year.

FIFTY MILLION MAY LOSE HOMES AS RIVER RISES

SHANGHAI, June 18—(UP)—The great Yellow river, for centuries the "scourge" of China, was running wild today, and threatened to make 50,000,000 persons homeless within 30 days.

There seemed little prospect of halting the floods which have spread to sections of five provinces and made a lake of thousands of square miles of war-torn territory.

Japanese military authorities said they were unable to check the river's rampage.

The waters continued to rise as torrential rains beat down on all sections of north-central China, bringing a 44-foot rise in the river during the past two days.

The international famine relief commission gave a gloomy prediction for the future, declaring itself at a loss to do anything because of the lack of funds and inability to operate in war zones behind the Japanese lines.

"Fifty million persons will be homeless within a month unless the floods are controlled," said J. E. Baker, director of the commission.

The floods, threatening to halt the entire Chinese-Japanese war, were the worst in China since 1855, when the muddy Yellow river stormed a new course eastward to the sea.

APPEALS COURT UPHOLDS $5,666 ELSEA VERDICT

Jury's Decision In Wreck Trial Fair, District Judges Hold

OTHER SUITS PENDING

Kidwell Finding Reversed; McPherson Winner

The Common Pleas court jury award of $5,666.66 to Mrs. Ruth Elsea, Washington township, in the death of her husband, Asa, on March 13, 1936 in an auto-truck collision on Route 23, was affirmed by the Court of Appeals in a decision filed Saturday.

Mrs. Elsea, as administratrix of the estate of her husband, asked $22,786 damages. The verdict was appealed by the transportation company. All of the judges, Peter J. Blosser, Chillicothe; Russell McCurdy, Portsmouth and Roy J. Gillen, Wellston, concurred in the 10-page decision.

Two other cases resulting from the accident are on file against the company. Gilbert Dowden, administrator of the estate Bernard Dowden, seeks $25,000. William F. McCrady, administrator of the estate of John W. McCrady, asks $13,361.40. Mr. Elsea, Dowden and McCrady were killed in the wreck. They were riding in the auto. The truck driver was injured.

McPherson Wins Appeal

Judgment of Common Pleas court in the case of Homer Kidwell, Darby township, against H. C. McPherson, of Pherson, was reversed by the court and the case was remanded to Common Pleas court for further proceedings.

This suit was based on a truck wreck on Dec. 12, 1936 near the intersection of Routes 56 and the Williamsport-Darbyville pike. Mr. Kidwell was awarded $679.16 in his suit for $984. The verdict was appealed on questions of law.

"The verdict was a general one for $679.16 and there is no way to determine what amount the jury allowed the plaintiff for personal injury and what amount the jury awarded for damage to the truck," the decision explains.

Instructions Cited

"It was incumbent on the plaintiff to prove the amount of damage to his truck. This the plaintiff failed to do. The trial court failed to properly instruct the jury as to the measure of damages which was to applied in determining the damages to the truck of the plaintiff.'

NAZIS DRIVE ON IN RELENTLESS PURGE OF JEWS

BERLIN, June 18—(UP)—The "purge" of Jews from Germany's economic as well as cultural life went on relentlessly today and it was learned from Nazi quarters that the drive was prepared carefully and methodically, partially by storm troops.

There was no indication of any let-up in the anti-Jewish campaign. Tired, frightened Jews returned furtively home after another night of terror in which their homes were entered, many were arrested and scores of Jewish shops daubed with the "curse of non-aryanization."

Details of the organization of the drive revealed that storm troop sections were under instructions to draw up lists of Jews and especially of Jewish shops in their districts.

Sub-leaders were instructed two days in advance when action was planned in their districts. Thus the plans for the drive in the Hohenschoenhausen district, scheduled for this morning, were completed on Thursday.

Copeland, New Deal Foe, Dead

Senator From New York For 16 Years Victim Of Overwork

WASHINGTON, June 18—(UP) The body of Royal S. Copeland, senior senator from New York and only physician in the senate, will be taken to the family home in Suffern, N. Y., for burial next Tuesday.

He died in his apartment in the Shoreham hotel at 7:45 p. m., Friday, after a short illness caused by overwork in the 75th congress. He was 69 years old.

Death came less than 24 hours after congress had adjourned. Although doctors gave the immediate cause of death as a "circulatory collapse," a combination of heart and kidney disease, they agreed that exhaustion, as a result of intensive work during the closing days of congress, had precipitated his death. He had suffered from a kidney ailment for some time, however.

Less than a year ago, while paying tribute to the late Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson following his death, Copeland had warned his colleagues against over-exertion lest there be more deaths among them. Exactly 11 months later his death was attributed largely to disregard of his own warning.

REBEL SOLDIERS DECLARE LOYAL LINES CRACKING

HENDAYE, French-Spanish frontier, June 18—(UP)—Twenty-five thousand Loyalist troops, fighting to save Valencia province, and within shelling distance of that former provisional capital, were thrust back today in four places, according to Nationalist reports.

Some of the most violent fighting of the war took place within a period of eight hours today with the tide of battle swinging back and forth around Villareal, a village about five miles South of Castellon De La Plana.

Both sides claimed occupation of Villareal. The government said yesterday that the Loyalists, personally directed by Commander-In-Chief Jose Miaja, stormed into the village and drove the Nationalists back across the Mijares river. Last night, the Loyalists said they still held the village, but that violent fighting was in progress on its outskirts.

Early today, Nationalist dispatches said that the Loyalists had been forced back, that they lost Villareal and were retreating about two miles to the South.

According to the Nationalists, the entire Loyalist line which runs 17 miles inland from the sea along the Mijares river, appeared to be cracking. They said that Nationalist shock troops were piercing the line.

TWO QUESTIONS BAFFLE NATION'S MAJOR CARRIERS

Crisis More Important As July 1, Date For Slash In Pay, Approaches

BANKRUPTCY IS FEARED

Possibility Of Special Congress Hinted

WASHINGTON, June 18 — (UP) — Transportation authorities predicted today that America's railroad industry will face the most severe crisis of its checkered history in the next six months.

Two great issues, they contend, will provoke a climax in the rail situation within that period:

1. The labor question, gradually growing more heated as the July 1 deadline approaches when rail management proposes to slash 15 percent from the pay checks of nearly 1,000,000 workers.

2. The depression which is expected to throw many railroads into bankruptcy courts.

Only a substantial rise in freight traffic coming with a general upturn in business can prevent the situation approaching the proportions of a national emergency, experts say.

Despite the failure of congress to provide federal aid, railroad circles expressed little disappointment that the "stop-gap" legislation proposed late in the session was not enacted. They believe that the relief would have been small and only a palliative for roads which still have some good collateral on which to borrow—and sink further in debt.

CINCINNATI REDS BECOME NEW THREAT IN NATIONAL LOOP RACE

OHIOANS SCORE IN TWO GAMES WITH BROOKLYN

Weaver, Lombardi, Goodman And Berger Join to Obtain Important Victories

NEW YORK, June 18—(UP)—Bill Terry and Charlie Grimm today took full and official cognizance of the "red menace" in the National League.

No longer can the race be considered a "two-horse" affair between the Giants and Cubs. The Cincinnati Reds have definitely established their right to recognition.

By taking a double-header from Brooklyn yesterday, Cincinnati scored its fourth straight victory and moved within a half a game of the second-place Cubs and only 3½ games behind the league-leading Giants. With big Jim Weaver pitching a four-hitter the Reds won the first game, 4-3, in 11-innings and then slugged their way to a 12-10 triumph in the nightcap.

Wally Berger Helps

Wally Berger, recent acquisition from the Giants and the Alex Kampouris deal, led Cincinnati's attack in both games, getting a double and a single off Van Mungo in the opener and collecting a homer, double and single to drive in four runs in the second. Ival Goodman hit homer No. 15 in the eleventh to win the opener after Ernie Lombardi's homer had tied the score in the ninth.

The Giants gained a game and a half on the Cubs when they beat the Cardinals, 10-3. Clydell Castleman registered his second win, allowing seven hits. Hank Leiber and Joe Moore each made four hits. Leiber hit a homer with the bases loaded, and drove in five runs. Mel Ott and Joe Moore also homered.

The Cubs drive hit a disastrous snag when the Boston Bees took them twice, 1-0 and 3-2. Jim Turner outdueled Bill Lee in the opener, with each permitting five hits. Ray Mueller's homer won the game. John Lanning, aided in the ninth by Ira Hutchinson, beat the Cubs in the nightcap. Herman's error and hits by Cooney, Garms, English and Cuccinello gave the Bees their three runs in the first inning.

A wild pitch by Al Hollingsworth recently acquired from the Reds, enabled Pittsburgh to nose out the Phillies, 4-3, in 10 innings. Mace Brown won his ninth game in a relief role. The Pirates scored their winning run on Handley's walk, a sacrifice, an infield out and Hollingsworth's pitch.

Allen Gains Eighth

Cleveland increased its American league lead over the idle Yankees to a full game by defeating the Athletics, 8-1, behind Johnny Allen's five-hit pitching. It was Allen's eighth victory. The Indians collected 12 hits, including Bruce Campbell's homer, off Ross and Edgar Smith.

Jack Wilson pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox for his seventh triumph and enabled his team to move within one game of the Yanks.

Washington and Detroit divided a doubleheader, the first going to the Senators, 12-10, and the second to the Tigers, 4-3. Al Simmons hit two homers for Washington.

Case, West and Lewis each hit one. Chet Laabs hit a pair for Detroit. Ferrell won and Auker lost in the opener; Lawson won and Leonard lost in the nightcap.

STAGEHAND AND CHIEF FAVORED IN DWYER RACE

NEW YORK, June 18—(UP)—Maxwell Howard's entry of Stagehand and The Chief was the 6-5 favorite to win the $10,000 added Dwyer stakes at Aqueduct today.

The B. F. Whitaker entry of Mythical King, and Crepe was second choice at 7-5.

It will be the first start for Stagehand since his defeat in the derby trial at Churchill May 3. The speedy Stagecraft colt, Winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby after sensational victories in the Santa Anita derby and handicap, was forced out of the Louisville fixture by a fever.

Stagehand will carry topweight of 126 pounds in the small field. opposing the Howard and Whitaker entries were Myron Selznick's Cant Wait, a 4-1 shot; and John Hay Whitney's Gentle Savage quoted at 10-1.

LAWRIN CARRIES 120 POUNDS IN INGLEWOOD RACE

INGLEWOOD, Cal., June 18—(UP)—Lawrin, Kentucky Derby victor, was a prohibitive favorite to win today's $15,000 trial stakes at Hollywood park in his first start since derby day last May 7.

Lawrin was favored by overnight odds from 1-2 to 1-10. Sharp and Ready, the brown son of Insco held distinct advantages in weights, size of field and footing.

The derby winner was weighted at 120 pounds, six less than he packed at Churchill Downs and four more than his rivals in today's mile and one-sixteenth fixture. All the other horses were weighted evenly at 116 pounds.

Conditions of the race, other than the weight advantage, appeared hand-selected for Lawrin. The small field virtually eliminated the possibility of his being boxed or bumped in the early going, and the soft, springy turf of the new and comparatively slow track was well-suited to the colt's tender feet.

The rest of the field included Bert Baroni's Specify, Bing Crosby's Rocco, Count Pan, Fire Marshal and Boss Martin. Specify was considered the only one capable of outlasting the favorite.

ST. PAUL STREAK OF WINS SPURTS AGAINST BIRDS

COLUMBUS, June 18—(UP)—The longest winning streak compiled by any team in the American Association this season today had carried St. Paul from a second division berth into a spot only two games behind the pace-setting Indianapolis Indians.

St. Paul ran its string of consecutive triumphs to 10 yesterday when it downed the hapless Columbus Red Birds in both ends of a double-header.

St. Paul took the opener 9 to 6 and the nightcap 6 to 4. A home run by First Baseman Leroy Anton with two men on base in the eighth inning provided the Saints with their winning margin in the first game. Three Columbus hurlers were unable to halt the Saint sluggers in the second contest and were rapped for 11 safeties.

Jack LaRocca put the wobbly Kansas City Blues back into the win column with a neat 4 to 3 victory over Louisville. LaRocca gave up only four hits.

Toledo and Minneapolis put on a pair of wild contests. The Millers took the opener 13 to 7 and Toledo snatched the nightcap by a 17 to 7 count.

Home runs featured the games. Five circuit drives were hit in the first game and seven in the night cap. Ted Williams, rookie outfield star of the Millers, hit three of the homers to boost his seasons total to 19.

Johnny Niggeling allowed only two hits as he pitched Indianapolis to a 3 to 0 victory over Milwaukee.

The first bus service in England was inaugurated in Oxford in 1911.

Too Much Effort Cut Golf Team's Chances

BY WILLIAM BOWMAN
Pickaway Club Professional

Why is it that so many golfers when playing at match play, do so many things wrong that they themselves can't account for it. In an analysis of our games last Wednesday at London, with one or two exceptions, no one shot their usual game. Nearly every man went many strokes over his normal game. This is partially explained by the fact that few had ever played the course before, and knew very little about what club to use or just the exact distance to go, consequently old man creek received a great many balls that could have been averted. The home players naturally had the edge in knowing every angle of the course. We will have then in the same condition when they come here to play in July. In fact, I would not be surprised if we did not get a larger margin of decision over them than they did us there.

We go to Washington Courthouse Wednesday, June 29, and I would like to see even more up there than we took to London. It is said that we had a very impressive turnout to London, and we matched them man for man, in fact one of our players had to wait for some time for the arrival of an opponent. Our players are all just itching to lock horns with the same players here, unless I miss my guess the fur is going to fly in a different direction. I hope that when we arrive over in Washington C. H. that we will just consider our match there just another golf game, not try too hard, and things will be different. We all tried the impossible in London, and when you try too hard at this game of golf, you don't do so well. However we can't defeat human nature, and that is something that is bound to happen in any form of sport, try, try and try. Let's quit trying, just make our shots as golf shots should be made, forget about what the opponent is doing, shoot our game just as near par as is possible, and if we can do this, we will emerge from the game in Washington showing a big improvement in our course. We may not be able to win from Washington there, but we can make it a closer score.

SMITH PERMITS TWO BINGLES IN 6 TO 1 CONTEST

Blue Ribbon Dairy Gains Victory Over Speedy Cain Outfit

Raymond Smith, who is rapidly becoming one of the outstanding hurlers of the recreation ball league, turned in a gem Friday evening when he put the Cain food market team, South Bloomfield, down with a single run and two lone hits. Both hits were obtained by Ansil Roof, Cain shortstop, the first going for a home run when the dairy center field was unable to nab his fly ball.

The Blue Ribbons scored six markers for themselves, two crossing in the first inning being enough to win the ball game, but four were added in the fifth to clinch the fray. The big fifth frame saw everything happen from a hit to a dropped ball by the pitcher that paved the way for three runs after one had been scored already.

Thomas tossed them for the Cain youths and did a good job except in the fifth session.

Davis' Hit Helps

The dairy's fifth inning rally were scored on Thompson's single S. Roof's error on a throw after Whaley grounded to short, and Merle Davis' single which plated both runners. He was called out after he had run to third for missing second base.

Ansil Roof's home run in the second inning made the score 2-1.

The dairy's fifth inning rally was featured by a single by Hutchinson, fielder's choice on Butler's grounder, Hutchinson being forced at second. Smith singled and Thompson doubled to right. Whaley grounded out, no advancing, but, when Thomas dropped Stevens' high fly near the foul line, another run scored. Davis and Brungs followed the singles to account for the others.

League managers met after the ball game to approve several changes in rosters. The Glitt food food market was permitted to drop Edgar McClure and Bill Steele and take on Turk Baucher and Hildeburn Martin, the former being released by the Eshelman Feeds, on whose list he had been. Purina Feeds were voted permission to add Frank Kline, dropping Lawrence Lagore and Frank Cook.

The managers voted too, to charge an admission of five cents to the bleachers, now occupied by a few paying and many more nonpaying fans. After payment of the nickle fans sitting there will be excused from any other obligation, the hat not being passed in the stands.

SCHMELING AND LOUIS ATTRACT RECORD BETTING

NEW YORK, June 18—(UP)—The Max Schmeling-Joe Louis heavyweight title bout scheduled for next Wednesday was shaping up today as one of the biggest betting affairs of all time.

Jack Doyle, veteran Broadway price-maker, said that more bets are being made than ever before.

But—Doyle admitted the total amount of money risked may not exceed that which was wagered on the Louis-Baer fight in 1935. That fight, he said, established an all-time record for the amount gambled.

"In all the years I've been making prices," Doyle said, "I've never been besieged by so many inquiries on a fight—inquiries from all over the United States and foreign countries."

Doyle said that outside New York City, most of the heavy betting was coming from the far West, North-West and middle South. He quoted Louis as the 8½ to 5 favorite in hand-to-hand betting. He explained that Louis was the favorite because the men betting on him seemed willing to wager "larger chunks of money" than those favoring Max. "However," he added, "I believe there there are actually more people willing to bet on Schmeling."

Eddie Borden, another price-maker, quoted Louis as the favorite at 9-5 and 11-5 in book betting. The customer betting on Louis would put up $11 to win $5, and the customer betting on Schmeling would have to risk $5 in order to win $9.

Meanwhile, Promoter Mike Jacobs announced that a million-dollar gate was virtually assured.

WORLD RECORDS IN DANGER WITH STARS RUNNING

PRINCETON, N. J., June 18—(UP)—Several world records were in danger at Princeton's fifth annual invitation track and field meet today, but the one most likely to go was the 4:06.4 mile mark held by Sydney Wooderson of England.

Although 31 of the nation's outstanding athletes will be competing in six events, the curtain-raiser promised to be the feature—with Glenn Cunningham and Archie Sam Romani of Kansas, Josef Mostert of Belgium, Pete Bradley of Princeton, and Blaine Rideout of Texas, matching strides for four laps around the Palmer stadium cinder track.

Cunningham, who ran the fastest mile ever recorded—indoors—in 4:04.4 at Dartmouth last Winter, and San Romani are both convinced Wooderson's mark will be shattered. San Romani is convinced he can go the distance in 4:03, and intends to set his pace for that figure. If the mile record is bettered, Jack Lovelock's 3:47.8 for 1500 meters and Mostert's 3:00.4 for ¾ mile are also doomed.

Earl Meadows of Southern California, co-holder of the world pole vault mark of 14 ft., 11 in., is the big threat to explore the stratosphere above the 15-foot mark.

Competing against him are Cornelius Warmerdam, Fresno State; Bill Harding, Yale, Ralph Ross, Army, and R. F. Patterson, Princeton.

There never has been a case of genuine muntiny in the U. S. navy.

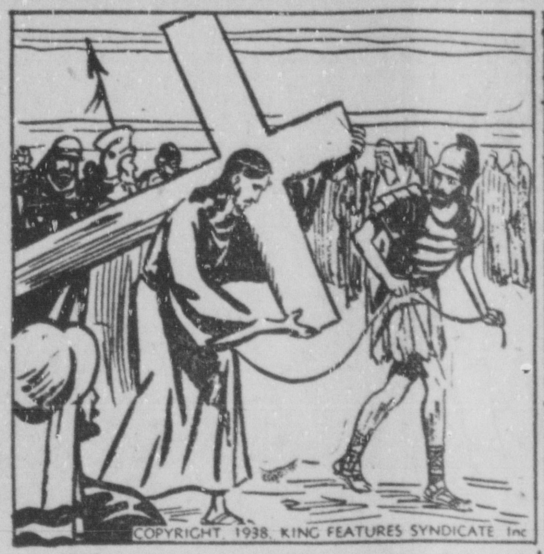
The Suffering Servant ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

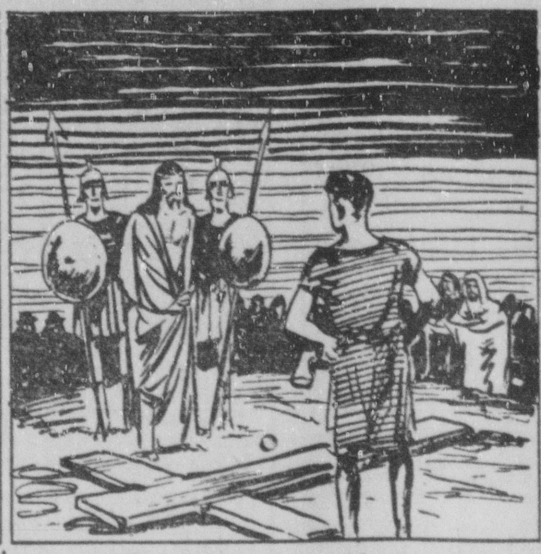
By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell
And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 15:22-39.

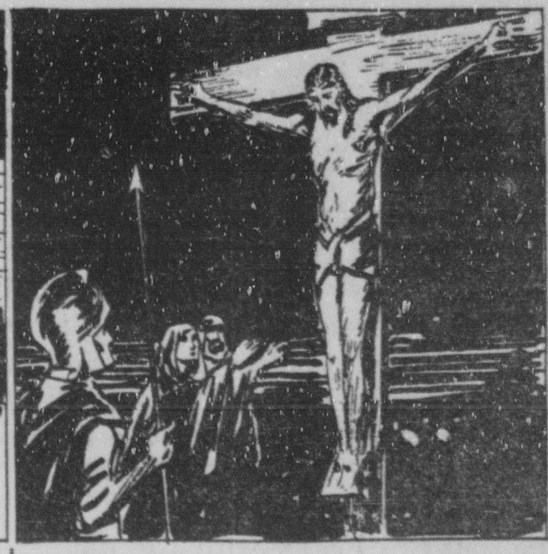


COPYRIGHT, 1938, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.

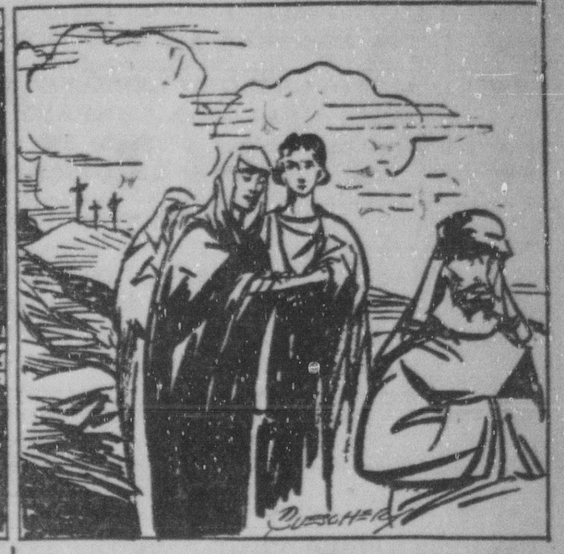
Pontius Pilate having given Jesus over to his enemies to be crucified, they came to the place of execution, called "Golgotha"—meaning "the place of a skull".



Pilate ordered placed over Jesus' cross the words, "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews". Two thieves were crucified with Jesus, one on each side.



During the six hours Jesus hung on the cross the mob, including the priests, mocked him, saying, "He saved others; himself he cannot save."



Out of the darkness Jesus cried, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" After his death the centurion said, "Truly this man was the Son of God."
(GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 15.45)

Mark 10:45—"For the son of man also came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.

The Suffering Servant

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 19, is Mark 15:22-39, the Golden Text being Mark 10:45, "For the Son of man also came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.")

"Beneath a Syrian sky, amid a rabble cry, a Man went forth to die—for me! Thorn-crowned his blessed head, blood-stained his every tread; cross-laden,on he sped—for me! Lifted up was he to die; 'It is finished,' was his cry; now in heaven exalted high. Hallelujah! What a Saviour."

The Wondrous Cross

Six desperately long hours Jesus hung upon that cruel cross under the prophetic title Pontius Pilate wrote to sting the pride of those who drove him to crucify him. "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews" was the title which Pilate wrote more wisely than he realized, for Christ was King indeed. The chief priests also spoke as involuntary phophets when they mockingly cried out at him, "He saved others; himself he cannot save." "Let the Christ, the King of Israel, now come down from the cross that we may see and believe." Having come down from the cross by way of the open tomb and a glorious resurrection, even his crucifiers admit that men should believe on him as Christ of God.

The Authority of the Cross

Upon that wondrous cross on which the Prince of Glory died, he exercised complete authority over all the forces of life and death. He had said, "I lay down my life for the sheep; no man taketh it from me; I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power (authority) to take it again." In this God-given authority he spoke seven authoritative words from the cross: (1) "Father forgive them," a word of authority with the Father for our forgiveness; (2) "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise," a word of authority with us as sinners for our absolution; (3) "Woman, behold thy son," a word of authority to the sorrowing for our comfort; (4) "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" a word of authority with sin for its propitiation; (5) "I thirst," a word of authority with pain to endure it; (6) "It is finished," a word of authority with life to attain its goal; (7) "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit," a word of authority over death to destroy it. In the exercise of this authority our Lord was not a passive victim on the cross, but supremely active in our behalf.

The Cross and Sin

The battle was at its fiercest point when the loud cry of forsakeness came up from the bottomless pit of spiritual death, "My God, My God, why has thou forsaken me?" How that battle between the seed of the woman and the serpent resulted, all the forces of hell found out when the risen Christ of glory was "made alive in the spirit and went and preached to the spirits in prison," or, as we say in the creed, "descended into hell" and "led captivity captive," heading a great exodus from death's dominion into his presence in paradise. Easter is God's testimony to humanity as to the outcome of that decisive battle of the ages upon which we look in as we hear this agonizing cry of him who was just then being "made sin for us that we might be made the righteousness of God in him."

The Rent Veil

The effect of the cross is symbolized in God's act in rending the temple veil from the top to the bottom, for thus "the way into the holiest was made manifest" and we "have boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus."

AUSTRALIAN MARRIAGES STILL KEEP 1908 RATIO

CANBERRA (UP) — Statistics reveal that Australians are the most stable marrying people in the world.

Neither the World War, the modern pace of living nor economic crises have changed their ideas on the subject, and their marriage rate is the same as in 1908.

The latest figures show 8.4 marriages per 1,000 of population. The only countries with a higher marriage rate now are Russia, South Africa, Germany, Denmark and Rumania. Italy is lower.

Presbyterians Open Drive For Money at Church Rites

First Presbyterian church will open its financial campaign Sunday morning to raise $2,000 for the redecoration of the first floor. At the close of the regular worship service an opportunity will be given for members of the church to pledge to that purpose. Great interest has been taken in this worthy cause and many classes, organizations, and individual members are expected to respond.

Work is expected to begin on the redecoration the first week in July while the pastor is on vacation. Many improvements are planned by the decorating committee. The committee is composed of J. O. Eagleson, chairman, Mrs. A. J. Lyle, Miss Florence Dunton, Mrs. W. W. Robinson, Theodore Steele, Dr. F. C. Schaeffer, Otis Mader, Miss Bertha Bowers, Lemuel Weldon.

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, pastor, will speak during the worship hour on the theme "Proud Pharisees". The choir will sing the anthem "Come Let Us All Rejoicing," by Warhurst. Miss Abbe Mills Clark, organist, will play "Processional," by Gaul, "Minuet in G," by Beethoven, and "Hero's March," by Mendelssohn.

NO PEACE

PERSECUTION still dogs the glamorous but unfortunate Lindberghs. Even in their exile on a friendly island in the English Channel, where the colonel is engaged in scientific work with Dr. Alexis Carrel, they are getting menacing letters and feel obliged to rely on the protection of French police. The letters, it is sad to say, come from America.

These two gifted people may still do brilliant work for themselves and mankind, he as an aviator and scientist and she as an author. But whether they may live peaceful and happy lives is another question. They may feel, with one of Shakespeare's characters:

" 'Tis better to be lowly born,
And range with humble livers in content,
Than to be perked up in a glistering grief
And wear a golden sorrow."

REASON FOR FREE SPEECH

MOST Americans think of free speech from the personal angle. They do not want their own freedom of speech curtailed or their own liberty withdrawn while they sojourn in a concentration camp.

Free speech as essential to the welfare of the nation is sometimes lost sight of, particularly by patriots like Mayor Hague of Jersey City and the many men and women who obviously agree with him. This other side is emphasized in numerous opinions of the late Justice Holmes of the U. S. Supreme Court.

"When men have realized," he wrote in an important dissenting opinion, "that time has upset many fighting faiths, they may come to believe, even more than they believe in the very foundations of their own conduct, that the ultimate good desired is better reached by free trade in ideas —that the best test of truth is the power of the thought to get itself accepted in the competition of the market, and that truth is the only ground upon which their wishes safely can be carried out. That at any rate is the theory of our Constitution.

"Every year, if not every day, we have to wager our salvation upon some prophecy based upon imperfect knowledge. While that experiment is part of our system, I think that we should be eternally vigilant against attempting to check the expression of opinions that we loathe and believe to be fraught with death."

In another decision: "If there is any principle of the Constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other, it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us, but freedom for the thought we hate."

It is not a betrayal of democracy itself to be so afraid of other theories that we dare not let them be spoken or published?

FREE RIDE TO LAWYER

WASHINGTON—This year has been the most disastrous ever suffered by the circus industry in America. Four shows already have closed—Downey Brothers, Art Mix, Atterbury Brothers and Tim McCoy.

Three other railroad shows, looking for better business, have fled to Canada. At present there are only two railroad shows in the entire United States, Al G. Barnes-Sells Floto and Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey, and the latter, with an overhead cost of $14,000 a day, is doing spotty business.

Faced with the double disaster of depression plus a cold, rainy Spring, the circus managers of the country, especially in the East, turn to a man in Washington who is probably the world's foremost friends of the circus.

He is Melvin D. Hildreth, a Washington lawyer, president of the Circus Fans of America.

The D stands for Davis, and it was this name which Hildreth used as a young boy in Fargo, N. D. when he and a pal founded and managed for five years the Davis and Upsaw Circus, beginning with an admission charge of pins and graduating to pennies, then nickels.

At the height of the Davis and Upshaw business there were as many as twenty boys taking part, and almost as many in the audience. Their stunts were chiefly gymnastic, with a few stuffed animals. Hildreth's job was that of announcer, and he has been ballyhooing circuses from the side-lines ever since.

ROUTING CIRCUSES

Hildreth never has been on the payroll of any circus, has nothing to gain, not even a pass, from heading the Circus Fans of America. But there is no circus manager or old-time performer who does not know him, and this year his office has been deluged with long distance calls from frantic managers wanted Hildreth to help re-route them through more prosperous territory.

Ringling Brothers had to cancel Detroit and Cleveland because of serious unemployment there. Three circuses, Robbins Brothers, Cole Brothers and Hagenbeck-Wallace. were routed through Canada on the advise of Hildreth; while he tried to save Downey Brothers by bringing it down through the more prosperous ship-building towns along the Delaware and Chesapeake—without success. Downey Brothers has now returned to Alabama and winter quarters at the height of the mid-summer season, its animals rented out to filling stations to save the expense of feeding them.

If you want to praise a person nowadays, you call him "realistic." And realism is, of course, your way of thinking.

How Your Skin Reacts Under Rays of the Sun

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SUN BATHING, which should be in full swing in a week or two, is undoubtedly of benefit to health if performed sensibly, but in order to get the full benefits out of it, an understanding of the anatomy and physiology of the skin and the action of the sun's rays is desirable.

The skin consists of a layer of tough horny cells in which there are no blood vessels. The nourishment of this layer comes entirely from below, where there is abundant blood supply, as well as fat, hair follicles, lymph, sweat glands.

The upper layer, if we could separate it entirely, would be found dry and crackly like a piece of cellophane. It is kept moist and lubricated by the secretions of the glands which pour out on its surface.

It is translucent and allows the sun's rays to seep through it, affecting the blood and fat beneath.

It is this upper layer, however, that gets sunburned. The "burn" is like any other burn, and destroys the cells. The lower layer responds to the destruction by bringing more blood to the part—that is, furnishing more nourishment to replace the destruction. That is what causes the red skin of sunburn.

If the burn is mild, the very top layer of cells is destroyed, the dead cells drop off. This is the "peel" of sunburn.

When Burn Is Deep

If the burn is deep, all the cells of the upper layer are destroyed in spots and the lymph from the lower layer of the skin fills in these damaged places, and that is the blister of sunburn.

Tan begins when the pigment cells of the skin begin to move in. The pigment of the skin resides in the lower layer of the skin. In very dark people and Negroes it may invade the lowest layer of the upper part. Pigment varies in different people and is increased or decreased according to circumstances. One circumstance which we are studying is the exposure to sun. The pigment increases and moves around, probably carried by blood, because if a piece of skin from a lighter part of the body is grafted on an exposed part, it turns darker.

Very dark skinned people have a more even distribution of pigment and, of course, more of it, and take an even tan, the despair of the freckler. But of this, more tomorrow.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. V. K.: "I am writing for a T. B. patient. This patient must live with the family. It is a case of long standing. Age 51. Not under a doctor's care now. What precautions must be taken to protect children ages 17 and 12? What care given to dishes, towels, etc.? Could patient help around the kitchen if hands properly sterilized?"

Answer: The patient should be taught to hold a paper napkin in front of the mouth while coughing and to expectorate only in a paper napkin. Pinned to the side of the bed or the chair should be a paper bag in which all of these paper napkins should be placed. The whole bag should be burned at the end of each day. The patient should have his own eating utensils and these should be kept separate from the rest of the family's and should be washed and boiled in a separate dishpan. Towels should be individual. The children should not be allowed to kiss the patient or be in the same room at night. If not under a doctor's care the county health authorities will provide visising nurse's care or some sort of medical supervision, and they should be consulted. It is not advisable to have the patient help around the kitchen, not on account of the hands, but on account of the breath and sputum particles.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

CHAPTER 36

THE GUITAR and song held that ethereal, floating quality that music can have only at night and at a distance.

"Must be her radio or phonograph," Bill decided. Then instantly he knew it wasn't. Something about the singing voice was too natural. Moreover, it was familiar.

Anyhow it couldn't be dangerous, or important. Or indeed, any of his business. Bill turned over determinedly and shut his eyes.

That seemed to amplify the music a little, and it floated to him more clearly now, ". . . love comes, again, on wings of morning, . . . bringing, for me, a new life's dawning . . ." he unconsciously translated the Spanish words of the song. Something in the melody and the strumming was haunting. "Gripe!" muttered Bill, and got up.

He slipped on trousers and shoes, walked out a ways toward Ellen's house. The girl slept, he knew, in the main second-story bedroom. Her adobe home was a Spanish adaptation of pueblo style, suggesting those which the prehistoric peoples had built in this region centuries ago; but to her windows had been affixed balconies with iron grilles. Her side window was lighted, and he could see the form of Ellen herself silhouetted in it. He walked a ways farther, still listening, and saw the man underneath.

"Well I'll be eternally doggoned damned!" growled Bill Baron to himself. "That mug has come all the way up here just to serenade her!"

He quietly sat down on a nearby rock, oblivious of the midnight chill, and watched the romantic scene there 50 yards or so from him. He had it all straight now. Felix Montoya had done what any good Mexican boy or man is likely to do when smitten by love—he had come a-singing in the light of the stars.

The devil of it was, Felix really could sing. He had a tenor that was almost velvety, and for which a guitar was the perfect accompaniment. Bill thought some of heaving a stone at the Mexican, then running. Then he decided it would be better to lift his own voice and bray as much like a mountaineer's burro as he could, a real jackass bray. He thought of getting a lasso and dragging Felix around some in darkness. He considered walking up to him and cracking him one with a hard fist.

But of course he actually did none of these things. Instead, the big Texan sat on the rock there in the darkness and scowled. When Ellen laughed and applauded at the end of the first song, he could see Felix bow courteously. When she then played her part a bit farther, went inside and returned with a blossom which was one of a bouquet always kept in her room, and tossed it to Felix, Bill felt as if somebody were jabbing at his soul with a pitchfork.

He slunk on back to his room then, feeling like a teen-age kid and mad at himself for feeling so. He got back in bed, but in a minute he came to his senses and got up again, dressed hurriedly and went to Ellen's house.

"Hi, there, Felix, glad to see you!" Bill greeted the late caller. "Heard your music. Say, boy, you can sing! I envy you."

The last statement at any rate was true. And if Bill really wasn't glad to see Felix, he did not let the guest know it. Together the two men and Ellen sat up until two o'clock, talking as if they were old schoolmates. Ellen cooked up some coffee, found assorted cakes and other things to eat. Stories and jokes and music and laughter made it a gay party, and in spite of his original reactions Doctor Bill Baron had a tip-top time.

When it seemed the tactful moment to do so, Bill volunteered his own bed and apartment for the guest, and Felix accepted. The two men bade Ellen good night, went together to retire. In the darkness again—and in his double bed beside Felix—Bill grinned broadly, at himself. Anyhow, he thought as he felt sleep coming, she can't elope with him tonight!

Bill could have kicked her but he didn't.

Ellen was up with the sun and had sent the lad Pablo Rivera down to invite both Bill and Felix to breakfast. They accepted, of course.

"It is an honor to have you visit Casa Hermosa," Ellen repeated, over their grapefruit. "And to be serenaded like that—marvelous! You will stay at least a week, Felix? Say you will!"

Bill could have kicked her. But he didn't. He squelched his honesty again.

"Sure, sure!" he boomed. "You must stay, Felix. We've been building Ellen a real rancho here. Want to show you my feed experiments, and the weight tests. Wish you could have brought your parents. And your sister. We need more company here. You'll have to stay!"

Whether he meant it or not, he sounded sincere. Felix glowed under the welcome—and promptly accepted!

It wasn't so terrible, at first, Bill admitted. Felix brought a change in the routine of hard work. Bill could delegate his immediate duties to some of the other cowboys while he rode with Felix and Ellen out to see the main herd and to inspect the smaller groups of test cattle.

They dismounted in one pasture, some two miles from the house, when they came onto a tiny calf lying alone in the grass. The mother was nowhere in sight. Ellen petted the calf and talked baby-talk to it. Bill promised she should have it at home for a personal pet. He carried it home for her then, in his arms as he rode.

They inspected a site which Bill had tentatively chosen near the house for a swimming pool, to be excavated and made of natural rock in the mountain stream by next summer. Then Bill tactfully pleaded a duty with the cowboys, and left Felix and Ellen to themselves.

The two stayed together practically all the time during the ensuing days. Buckshot Brown turned positively sullen about it. Bill had to pay a diplomatic call on the old man, and suggest quietly that Felix ought to have a lot of figurative rope. Maybe, thereby, he would hang himself, Bill hoped. The guest was a little too perfect, and Ellen was bound to see a light, the two men decided.

If Ellen ever saw a light, though, she didn't indicate as much.

Felix had come in his car and miraculously brought several changes of clothing with him. For daytime wear he had the relatively simple costume of the gentleman rancher in Mexico, but at night he sartorially "went to town", as the DD cowboys expressed it.

Ellen invited the whole ranch personnel, save for the actual house servants, in for one evening of sociability in her great living room. There were half a dozen shy Mexican women, wives of cowboys, and several cowboys themselves, all ill at ease. But the assembly managed to make it a merry occasion. Felix turned out for that in a gold costume which he said was for special dances. It was a shimmery golden satin, with red flares in the bottoms of the breeches, and a red lining for the bolero jacket. He was a handsome fellow, by anybody's standards, even though Buckshot Brown confided privately to Bill that he looked like a peacock with a harem of 12 peahens.

Felix played his guitar and sang for them. Some of the other Mexicans could sing and do folk dances. Ellen seemed especially to enjoy it. Felix and others taught her a few Mexican dance steps, and she showed them a few of the routines that had made her popular on American movie screens. All impromptu, it totaled a good time.

During the two days after that, Felix seemed constantly at Ellen's side. Bill stayed clear of them, but saw them often at a distance. He had a hunch that Felix was pressing his case and he prayed that Ellen wouldn't do anything impulsive. All told, the week was a thoroughly miserable one for Bill Baron, made more miserable because he went to great lengths to conceal his misery.

He worked like a fanatic, doing the tasks of two ordinary men. A new drove of 200 cattle had been brought in from a ranch near Tucson, and Bill labored to inject them with blackleg serum, brand those that required it, weigh and measure the ones to be tested, dehorn a few, establish feeder zones, fence off measured pasturage.

Toward the end of the week one of his own cowboys who had been helping and watching him for the past few days came up to him when he was perspiring freely one mid-afternoon.

"Listen, Doc," the cowboy counseled, seriously, "you don't have to work yoreself to death just because some slick guy is setting up to yore gal. Hell, if you say the word, we'll ride the son-of-a-gun out of here on a rail!"

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

President Roosevelt's adverse critics are bitterly resentful of his administration's support of New Deal candidates for the senate and house of representatives in the current year's campaign.

But such support is not unprecedented.

If ever an executive chief made a strong bid for legislative support President Wilson did when he appealed to the voters to give them the kind of congress he wanted to enable him to put his post-World war program through.

The voters did not do it in Wilson's case, to be sure.

Maybe they will not cast their ballots as per "F. D.'s" request.

NOTHING NEW

Possibly (judging from President Wilson's experience) it is questionable whether or not a White House tenant is wise in electioneering for a majority of his choosing on Capitol Hill.

However, it certainly is no new thing.

It is not necessarily dictatorial, either.

England is as democratic a country as ever was, and its administrations regularly appeal to the voters, over parliament's head, whenever the lawmakers turn administratively balky. Sometimes the administration wins and sometimes not.

In a way, it is a system which insures a speedier popular response than our own, concerning pending national issues. We get our verdicts only at stated intervals. The English have an election whenever one is needed.

"GOING TO THE COUNTRY"

The English call it "going to the country".

It's a system which Woodrow Wilson believed in, as primitively democratic.

Adapting it as well as he could (which unavoidably was clumsily) to our constitution, he tried it here —and got licked.

Americans were not accustomed to "going to the country".

And neither was President Wilson—except theoretically. He thought that "going to the country" meant an administrative victory. In England it frequently does not. But English statesmen are used to such upsets. On this side of the Atlantic it was a shock.

SPEAKS IN KENTUCKY

Nevertheless President Roosevelt is taking his chances.

After attending the marriage of his son, John, to Anne Lindsay Clark at Nahant, Mass., June 18, and the anniversary of the Swedes' first American landing at Wilmington, Del., he will make two New York speeches June 30. Will they be political? They will.

July 3. Presidential speech on the field of Gettysburg.

July 8. Presidential speech at Marietta, O., celebrating the 150th anniversary of the opening of the Northwest Territory.

July 8. Presidential speech at Covington, Ky., (afternoon of the same day), undoubtedly to aid the campaign of Senator Alben W. Barkley, senate majority leader, in fight for renomination against Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

July 9. Presidential speech at Paducah, Ky., home town of Senator Barkley.

Stops at Memphis, Tenn., for a T. V. A. talk, and at Oklahoma City, to speak, presumably, in behalf of Senator Elmer Thomas, who is having a hard renomination fight.

July 10. Presidential speech at Grand River dam, near Tulsa, Okla.

OTHER SPEECHES

Scattered through, but not yet definitely dated, are presidential speeches in the Muskingum conservation District, near New Philadelphia, O.; Ft. Worth and Denison, Tex., Pueblo, Col., and in Nevada and Utah, somewhere and somewhen.

After that the president will start on his west coast South American voyage.

On this voyage he expects to visit Bogota, Colombia; Quito, Equador; Lima, Peru, and Santiago, Chile—not to mention Panama, coming back. All these capitals are inland, except Lima. This will involve some "routing."

Bolivia is pretty close to the coast, too. It will feel slighted if the president fails to make an inland trip to its capital—La Paz. As a matter of fact, Bolivia has twin capitals, but Sucre is too internal to be bothered with.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Window box in shade

WINDOW BOXES placed on the north side of the house must be filled with plants which thrive in the shade. Such a box can be very interesting if planted entirely with ferns. If color is wanted, a complete range of colors can be had by planting with tuberous rooted begonias.

This Garden-Graph shows a plan for planting a window box in a shady location which offers quite a variety of flowers. The planting includes forget-me-nots, Swan River daisy, petunias, tuberous rooted begonias and nepeta hederacea.

Other plants which will thrive in a window box placd in the shade are floss flower, asparagus fern, Boston fern, elephant's ear, morning glory, trailing vinca, snapdragons and English ivy.

Jim Went to the Cellar

Last night Jim, our next-door neighbor, went to the cellar and looked over his last year's porch furniture. His appraising eye saw all the scratches and wear given the chairs last year by the three growing boys.

Jim decided that he needed some paint and a new brush; and planned to take that furniture out in the back yard next Saturday afternoon for the annual cleaning-up process.

Curious, but men all over the country are now thinking of paint, and seeds, and outdoor games. And—a new hat, a new suit and some new shirts.

And maybe the women don't feel the urge to buy new things?

And why shouldn't they? Why be content with old things when there is money for new? Merchants are offering the latest goods of all sorts in the advertisements in this newspaper. Go to them as you would to old friends. You can rely upon their descriptions of every article.

PARKER AND SCOTT

Feg Murray turns his radio telescope on two Hollywood stars, Cecilia Parker and Randolph Scott, as the "Seein' Stars in Hollywood" feature of the broadcast on Sunday, June 19. Ozzie Nelsons orchestra plays current hit tunes, with Ozzie and Harriet Hilliard as the vocalists, in this broadcast over the NBC blue network at 6:30 p. m.

Feg has discovered that Cecilia Parker was studying for grand opera when the offer of a Hollywood contract came along. She is one of the few screen stars who were born in Canada and is a graduate of the Toronto Academy of Music. Oddly enough her great successes have been in pictures of the adventure type until her recent hit in "Judge Hardy's Children."

Randolph Scott is one of the towns most versatile leading men, moving from musicals to comedy to melodrama with equal ease. Both stars will be heard in interviews with Feg Murray.

FARM NEWS

Brief Items of Interest to Pickaway Farmers

Two cover sprays to protect apples from the first brood of codling moth will be needed in all bearing orchards. Spraying should begin about June 10 and be finished as soon as possible.

Chemists at Ohio State University say that a person who gets his eyes blackened easily may be deficient in vitamin C which toughens the walls of blood capillaries so that they do not rupture so readily.

Considerable of the area included in the dustbowl of two years ago is getting more than normal rainfall this year. Only relatively small sections in the United States were deficient in moisture at the close of the spring months.

Recent purchase of 124,000 barrels of flour by the Surplus Commodities Corporation for distribution to families on relief will move into consumption some of last year's carryover which is helping to depress farm prices for 1938 wheat.

One reason that bees do not like to work on cool or damp days is that many flowers do not furnish as much nectar in that kind of weather as they do when the days are warm and fair. A good honey crop for Ohio in 1938 is predicted by W. E. Dunham, Ohio State University.

Harry M. Combrink, Carrollton, Illinois, says he buys corn to feed hogs and cattle on his farm but that when he bought corn for 15 cents a bushel in 1932-33 he also sold his hogs on the St. Louis market for $2.80 a hundredweight so he cannot figure out how surplus corn brings prosperity to livestock men.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU-

BY BOB BURNS

I hear the word "sophisticated" used so much among the younger generation that I've decided that it must be pretty important, but to save my life, I don't know jest what it means.

I judge from the conversation that in order for a person to look sophisticated, they hav'ta have dark circles under their eyes and a night club "palor" in their cheeks. If you put one of them "lounge lizards" out in a hay field for about two months and let him get a good coat of tan, he wouldn't look sophisticated at all.

Grandpa Snazzy says if you get right down to cases a girl ain't sophisticated until she has a vanity case, a cigarette case and a divorce case.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Adapted from Erich Maria Remarque's best-seller novel of European post-war chaos, "Three Comrades," which opens as the Cliftona Theatre Sunday, presents Robert Taylor, Margaret Sullivan Franchot Tone and Robert Young in one of the most touching love stories to reach the screen.

Although the Remarque story is placed against a background of the turbulent days succeeding the world conflict in Europe, it is primarily the drama of the devout love between a man and woman. Taylor brings an increased acting power to his role of Erich, youngest of the three comrades, who returns from the front embittered and disillusioned to find new hope in his love for Patricia, stirringly enacted by Miss Sullivan.

Tone has his best part in years as Koster, who sacrifices his one love, a racing car, in order to raise the funds for Patricia's operation. Robert Young also scores a memorable part as Lenz, the comrade who becomes embroiled in a political demonstration and is killed.

AT THE GRAND

During production of her latest Twentieth Century-Fox picture, "45 Fathers," opening Sunday at the Grand Theatre, Jane Withers experienced a great thrill.

Director James Tinling had spent fifteen unsuccessful minutes rearranging lights so that Janes nose would not appear shiny in one of the picture's scenes. As a last resort, he called the makeup man and had him powder her nose.

When the powder had been applied, Jane jumped to her feet and exclaimed with glee:

"Hurray! At last I'm wearing make-up!"

Thomas Beck, Louise Henry and the Hartmans, famous satirical dancers, are featured in "45 Fathers." John Stone served as assocate producer.

California, home of many elderly folk, has the lowest birth rate of any state in the United States.

At the Cliftona

ROBERT TAYLOR and Margaret Sullavan are seen together for the first time in "Three Comrades," Erich Maria Remarque's powerful story of a post-war love, now made into a stirring motion picture, and showing on the Cliftona screen starting Sunday. The distinguished cast also stars Franchot Tone and Robert Young under the direction of Frank Borzage.

BICKERING HITS HOPES FOR OHIO RELIEF ACTION

House Refuses To Study Entire Senate Plan Pending Conference

COLUMBUS, June 18—(UP)—Prospects for legislative action next week on a compromise relief program appeared more remote today through senate insistence that the house consider the entire senate plan before putting disputed bills into the hands of conference committees.

The deadlock gripped tighter after Sen. Keith Lawrence, D., Cuyahoga, senate majority leader, refused to name senate conferees to work with house managers, on disputed financing and administrative bills until the house acts on two remaining measures in the senate program. It had been anticipated that conference committees would start work Monday.

The house will reconvene Tuesday, but Speaker Frank B. Uible flatly rejected the senate demand and announced the house would do nothing more on relief legislation "until the conference committee sits.' The senate will not meet again until Wednesday. It appeared that perhaps the entire week's time might be spent in bickering.

The senate bills thus far not considered by the house authorize subdivisions to issue notes and borrow in anticipation of 1938 and 1939 beer and liquor permit fees and empower subdivisions within a county to transfer relief funds. Both measures were sent to the house taxation committee to take their regular course.

One disputed bill for which the house named its unofficial conferees involves the tax rate to be levied against utility companies and the length of extension of this and the beer, malt, wort, and admissions taxes. Most controversial point in the administrative bill is whether state funds shall be allocated to subdivisions by the state auditor or by a relief director appointed by the governor.

SERVICES TO BE HELD FOR WRECK VICTIM, SUNDAY

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon in Portsmouth for Edwin E. Lowry, 58, who died Friday afternoon in Berger hospital of injuries received in the auto wreck June 10 at Routes 22 and 104.

Mr. Lowry, a resident of Columbus for 19 years, was employed in the U. S. Shoe Corp., Chillicothe. His address was 150 S. Mulberry street in Chillicothe. He was a member of the Indianola Church of Christ, the Neocacla Lodge of Masons and the Modern Woodmen of the World in Columbus.

He is survived by his widow, Carrie; two daughters, Mrs. Ray Miller and Miss Jean Lowry; one grandson; two brothers, Clifton and Frank Lowry, and a sister, Miss Bessie E. Lowry. The body will be taken from Columbus to Portsmouth Sunday morning.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

COUNT UP TO NINE

IF YOU SEE the declarer has a couple of suits which will furnish most of the tricks needed for his no trump game, it is well to count a bit. When the total you get is pretty close to nine, perhaps only one shy of it, don't blindly go ahead and set up a sure trick for him by continuing your own suit. Take a whack at the one remaining suit.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South's opening bid here was 1-Club, West called 1-Heart, North and East passed and South bid 1-Spade. North's response to this was 1-No Trumps, and when South rebid his clubs, North jumped to 3-No Trumps.

East led the heart 7 and West immediately cashed his three high hearts and led a fourth heart to clear the suit. The fact that he had no entry to cash the remaining heart, as well as the fact that he set up what apparently was a very necessary trick for North, never seemed to occur to him. He had a splendid chance to wreck the contract by switching to the diamond Q, as the dummy's cards made the contract seem very likely unless his side could find a weak spot in diamonds.

That play could have given his side seven tricks before North could have gained control.

Copeland, New Deal Foe, Dead

York, expressed regret at the passing of Senator Copeland. But prominent members of the medical profession and the many friends he had acquired throughout the country as a result of his syndicated newspaper columns on health mourned the death of Dr. Copeland.

As senior senator from New York he had held many important committee assignments and during the last few weeks of the last session of congress had served on eight conference committees seeking to reconcile differences between senate and house versions of legislation. Much of his effort had been devoted to obtaining passage of the Copeland-Lea pure food and drug law which he had advocated for five years.

At the time of his death he was planning to begin a special committee investigation into subversive and un-American activities in the merchant marine.

Chesley W. Jurney, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, completed arrangements for Copeland's body to be taken to New York. He announced that the senator's wife, Mrs. Frances Spalding Copeland, and his only son, Royal S. Jr., would accompany the body on the 10 a. m. train of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Vice President John Nance Garner and House Speaker William B. Bankhead will name a congressional committee to attend the funeral services. Garner, who left the capital Thursday, will select the delegation at his Uvalde, Tex., home.

Second Solon To Die

Copeland was the second member of the 75th congress to die shortly after adjournment. Rep Allard H. Gasque, D., S. C., died early Friday in Walter Reed hospital after a brief illness.

First indication that Copeland was ill came Wednesday afternoon when he collapsed on the senate floor. It had not been generally known, however, that his illness was serious, but his physicians said that his condition had grown rapidly worse until last night.

National Democratic Committee Chairman James A. Farley, who threatened Copeland with administration opposition in his campaign for reelection in 1934, praised him as "an outstanding citizen of New York City and state. In his passing we lost the services of an honest and intelligent public official."

A lifelong conservative, Copeland was elected to the senate Nov. 7, 1922 and has served continuously since. Prior to becoming senator he served four years as health commissioner of New York City.

In New York City he was an important member of Tammany Hall's "old guard." Last year he was Tammany's candidate for mayor, but lost in the primaries to Jeremiah T. Mahoney, who, in turn, lost the election to Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia.

Mrs. Copeland and their son were at the bedside when death came.

News of his death brought the following expressions of condolence to Mrs. Copeland from the President at Nahant, Mass., where he will attend his son's wedding today:

"We have been greatly shocked to hear of the senator's sudden death. Mrs. Roosevelt joins me in sending to you our very deep sympathy."

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York was "inexpressibly shocked." At Albany he said that "I have no doubt but that the strain and continuous work which he carried on at the congressional session which has just ended hastened his death."

Lehman declined to discuss plans for appointing a successor to Copeland. It was believed that he might not do so since there probably will not be another session until after the regular state elections this Fall.

Almost since the inception of the New Deal, he had fought its social reform and spending program. He played major roles in the defeat not only of the court bill, but also of the executive department reorganization bill this year.

Joined Sen. Bailey

He was among the first of the little band of conservative Democrats about six months ago who signed a petition, circulated by Sen. Josiah W. Bailey, D., N. C., to rally the "old liners" into an effective bloc to return to the "old order of democracy."

G. O. P. LEADERS SAY CONGRESS' JOB NOT ENDED

WASHINGTON, June 18—(UP)—Charles L. McNary, R., Ore., minority leader of the senate, and Bertrand H. Snell, R., N. Y., minority leader of the house, in a joint statement today charged that congress had abandoned its obligation to the American people by adjourning at this time.

"We believe it to be the first duty of congress to remain in Washington and adopt measures to alleviate the paralysis of business and halt the downward spiral of economic forces engulfing the country," the statement said.

"We have so contended for many months, proposing specifically the steps which should be taken. But the pleas and proposals of the house and senate Republicans have been in vain . . .

"It is with the keenest regret and aversion that we now witness a bitter fulfillment of the warnings that we have issued. The planned Roosevelt recovery has, as we warned, become the Roosevelt depression."

John wore a white gardenia in the lapel of his morning coat. The ushers of whom his brothers James and Elliott were two wore white carnations. The church was decorated with white flowers, ferns and green branches.

At the conclusion of the church services, the bridal couple, attendants, President and Mrs. Roosevelt and others motored to the Nahant Club, where a reception was given for 800 persons. Later they attended the wedding breakfast for 36 members of the family and the wedding attendants. The bride's table at the latter function was smothered in white early Summer flowers.

The couple was scheduled to depart at 4:30 p. m. on a short wedding trip. Later in the month, however, they will go to Europe for two months. They will return in August and John will go to work as a member of a Boston advertising firm. They will live in Brookline.

out the major evils of the industry is the only legislative action which will be of material help, railroad officials said.

Speculation already is current that President Roosevelt will have to call a special session of congress to provide that type of remedy.

Statements made in the last few days by two members of the Interstate Commerce Commission point to the fact that main cause of the present critical railroad situation is the bitter competition between rails, highway carriers, air transportation, waterways and pipelines.

"Competition is a form of warfare, and in warfare some one gets hurt," Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman said recently. "Weakened by the present and immediately preceding depression in business, the railroads are staggering under this competitive barrage and in grave financial distress."

Commissioner Balthasar H. Meyer was no less emphatic:

"The state legislatures and congress alone can determine the basis upon which this competitive struggle shall be conducted," he said.

Both recommended establishment of a federal agency to regulate that competition, to weed out that part which is undesirable, and leave only the elements best equipped to serve the best public interest.

COURT RECORDS IN McCALL CASE GO TO GOVERNOR

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 18—(UP)—The fight for the life of Franklin Pierce McCall, condemned kidnaper and killer of five-year-old Jimmy Cash of Princeton, Fla., shifted today to Florida's state capital.

With McCall in "death row" at the Raiford state prison farm for safekeeping and to await the penalty of death in the electric chair ordered by circuit court in Miami for the kidnaping, the court records in McCall's case were delivered to Gov. Fred P. Cone here.

Cone must sign a death warrant before McCall can be executed. The governor also fixes the week for carrying out of any death sentence.

The 99-page transcript of court action against McCall was turned over by Cone to Attorney General G. C. Gibbs, who was asked to report on its legality.

Cone said he had not yet heard from C. A. Avriett, Jasper attorney acting for McCall's mother, brother and sisters, about an effort to obtain commutation of the abductors death sentence to one of life imprisonment.

JAPANESE REPORT SOVIET ATTACK ON MANCHUKUO

TOKYO, June 18—(UP)—The Domei (Japanese) news agency reported today that 30 Soviet border guards near Hungchun had made a machine gun attack on 20 Manchukuo patrol guards.

Babe Ruth To Coach Brooklyn

on June 2, 1935. That was his last major league appearance.

When he left Boston following a disagreement with Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the team then known as the Braves, Ruth said:

"I'm not through with baseball. At least I hope I'm not."

Ruth never again was connected with the game from that day on, although he had dickered with many clubs for various positions.

Ruth, whose top salary was $80,000 a year for 1930 and 1931, broke into major league baseball in 1914 as a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox. He was traded to the Yankees in 1920 and stayed with them through the 1934 season. Then he signed with the Braves for $25,000 annually on a three-year contract as a player, assistant to Manager Bill McKechnie and vice-president. It was said he could be manager the following year if he wanted.

But Ruth's name failed to increase attendance in Boston and on June 2, 1935, he quit the team after a dispute with Fuchs.

During his career Ruth hit 714 home runs, including those of six world series. He hit 60 home runs in 1927, the most ever hit by any man in the major leagues.

Babe Ruth To Coach Brooklyn

Famous Home Run Slugger To Get $15,000 For Remainder Of 1938

NEW YORK, June 18—(UP)—Babe Ruth, former home run king of baseball, today accepted a position as coach for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Terms of the contract were not announced but Ruth said he was to receive $15,000 for the balance of the season.

Ruth, since his release by the Boston Braves after he had left the New York Yankees, had waited long for a chance to return to major league baseball.

Last night the deal was closed which many believed will eventually make him manager of the Dodgers.

Ruth's contract was for the rest of this season. Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn manager, also has a contract which expires this year.

Announced by MacPhail

Larry MacPhail, executive manager of the Dodgers, made the following announcement:

"Babe Ruth will join the Dodgers. At a conference last night attended by Ruth, Larry MacPhail, Burleigh Grimes and Leo Durocher (captain of the Dodgers), Ruth accepted the position of coach on the club. Ruth will appear on the coaching lines at Ebbets field in tomorrow's doubleheader against the Chicago Cubs."

Ruth quit the Boston Braves, whom he joined on Feb. 28, 1935,

Blue Bloods of New England, Washington's Leading Statesmen Fill Auditorium

NAHANT, Mass., June 18—(UP)—The youngest Roosevelt of the presidential family was married today by the clergyman who united his mother and father more than 30 years ago.

John Aspinwall Roosevelt took as his bride Anne Lindsay Clark of Boston, blond New England debutante.

A socially-elect gathering crowded the century-old Nahant union church as a simple Episcopal ceremony was read by Dr. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton school. The President of the United States and Mrs. Roosevelt watched from the front pew. Other members of the Roosevelt clan turned out in force.

The service was brief. It was held in the gray stone church in this village which at times serves as the worshipping place for the Cabots and the Lodges. Hundreds of curious New Englanders gathered outside for a glimpse of the bride and bridegroom.

There was not even a candle on the altar, although the Episcopal service was used. The Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherill, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, aided in the ceremony, delivering the benediction.

Filled by Socialities

The ivy-clad church was crowded with persons whose names are by-words in the social blue books. They were augmented by those of men and women and women high in government position.

The President occupied the right-hand front pew with members of his immediate family. Across from him were the Clarks. Mr. Roosevelt was in formal morning dress.

The bride entered by the left aisle while the organ swelled to the music of the "Lohengrin" Wedding March. She was attended by her sister, Sally, 18. As she approached the rostrum she was met by John, who was attended by his brother, Franklin Jr.

They knelt as the ceremony was performed. The couple left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Russell Sturgis of Sumter. Her father, a Boston broker, F. Haven Clark, died in 1936.

The single ring ceremony was used and the ring itself as a plain gold band. The bride, true to her promise to wear "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue," wore her mother's diamond bracelet.

Anne wore an embroidered white organdy wedding gown with tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the val-

FIFTY MILLION MAY LOSE HOMES AS RIVER RISES

SHANGHAI, June 18—(UP)—The great Yellow river, for centuries the "scourge" of China, was running wild today, and threatened to make 50,000,000 persons homeless within 30 days.

There seemed little prospect of halting the floods which have spread to sections of five provinces and made a lake of thousands of square miles of war-torn territory.

Japanese military authorities said they were unable to check the river's rampage.

The waters continued to rise as torrential rains beat down on all sections of north-central China, bringing a 44-foot rise in the river during the past two days.

The international famine relief commission gave a gloomy prediction for the future, declaring itself at a loss to do anything because of the lack of funds and inability to operate in war zones behind the Japanese lines.

"Fifty million persons will be homeless within a month unless the floods are controlled," said J. E. Baker, director of the commission.

The floods, threatening to halt the entire Chinese-Japanese war, were the worst in China since 1855, when the muddy Yellow river stormed a new course eastward to the sea.

APPEALS COURT UPHOLDS $5,666 ELSEA VERDICT

Jury's Decision In Wreck Trial Fair, District Judges Hold

OTHER SUITS PENDING

Kidwell Finding Reversed; McPherson Winner

The Common Pleas court jury award of $5,666.66 to Mrs. Ruth Elsea, Washington township, in the death of her husband, Asa, on March 13, 1936 in an auto-truck collision on Route 23, was affirmed by the Court of Appeals in a decision filed Saturday.

Mrs. Elsea, as administratrix of the estate of her husband, asked $22,786 damages. The verdict was appealed by the transportation company. All of the judges, Peter J. Blosser, Chillicothe; Russell McCurdy, Portsmouth and Roy J. Gillen, Wellston, concurred in the 10-page decision.

Two other cases resulting from the accident are on file against the company. Gilbert Dowden, administrator of the estate Bernard Dowden, seeks $25,000. William F. McCrady, administrator of the estate of John W. McCrady, asks $13,361.40. Mr. Elsea, Dowden and McCrady were killed in the wreck. They were riding in the auto. The truck driver was injured.

McPherson Wins Appeal

Judgment of Common Pleas court in the case of Homer Kidwell, Darby township, against H. C. McPherson, of Pherson, was reversed by the court and the case was remanded to Common Pleas court for further proceedings.

This suit was based on a truck wreck on Dec. 12, 1936 near the intersection of Routes 56 and the Williamsport-Darbyville pike. Mr. Kidwell was awarded $679.16 in his suit for $984. The verdict was appealed on questions of law.

"The verdict was a general one for $679.16 and there is no way to determine what amount the jury allowed the plaintiff for personal injury and what amount the jury awarded for damage to the truck," the decision explains.

NAZIS DRIVE ON IN RELENTLESS PURGE OF JEWS

BERLIN, June 18—(UP)—The "purge" of Jews from Germany's economic as well as cultural life went on relentlessly today and it was learned from Nazi quarters that the drive was prepared carefully and methodically, partially by storm troops.

There was no indication of any let-up in the anti-Jewish campaign. Tired, frightened Jews returned furtively home after another night of terror in which their homes were entered, many were arrested and scores of Jewish shops daubed with the "curse of non-aryanization."

Details of the organization of the drive revealed that storm troop sections were under instructions to draw up lists of Jews and especially of Jewish shops in their districts.

Sub-leaders were instructed two days in advance when action was planned in their districts. Thus the plans for the drive in the Hohenschoenhausen district, scheduled for this morning, were completed on Thursday.

Copeland, New Deal Foe, Dead

Senator From New York For 16 Years Victim Of Overwork

WASHINGTON, June 18—(UP) The body of Royal S. Copeland, senior senator from New York and only physician in the senate, will be taken to the family home in Suffern, N. Y., for burial next Tuesday.

He died in his apartment in the Shoreham hotel at 7:45 p. m., Friday, after a short illness caused by overwork in the 75th congress. He was 69 years old.

Death came less than 24 hours after congress had adjourned. Although doctors gave the immediate cause of death as a "circulatory collapse," a combination of heart and kidney disease, they agreed that exhaustion, as a result of intensive work during the closing days of congress, had precipitated his death. He had suffered from a kidney ailment for some time, however.

Less than a year ago, while paying tribute to the late Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson following his death, Copeland had warned his colleagues against over-exertion lest there be more deaths among them. Exactly 11 months later his death was attributed largely to disregard of his own warning.

REBEL SOLDIERS DECLARE LOYAL LINES CRACKING

HENDAYE, French-Spanish frontier, June 18—(UP)—Twenty-five thousand Loyalist troops, fighting to save Valencia province, and within shelling distance of that former provisional capital, were thrust back today in four places, according to Nationalist reports.

Some of the most violent fighting of the war took place within a period of eight hours today with the tide of battle swinging back and forth around Villareal, a village about five miles South of Castellon De La Plana.

Both sides claimed occupation of Villareal. The government said yesterday that the Loyalists, personally directed by Commander-In-Chief Jose Miaja, stormed into the village and drove the Nationalists back across the Mijares river. Last night, the Loyalists said they still held the village, but that violent fighting was in progress on its outskirts.

Early today, Nationalist dispatches said that the Loyalists had been forced back, that they lost Villareal and were retreating about two miles to the South.

According to the Nationalists, the entire Loyalist line which runs 17 miles inland from the sea along the Mijares river, appeared to be cracking. They said that Nationalist shock troops were piercing the line.

TWO QUESTIONS BAFFLE NATION'S MAJOR CARRIERS

Crisis More Important As July 1, Date For Slash In Pay, Approaches

BANKRUPTCY IS FEARED

Possibility Of Special Congress Hinted

WASHINGTON, June 18 — (UP) — Transportation authorities predicted today that America's railroad industry will face the most severe crisis of its checkered history in the next six months.

Two great issues, they contend, will provoke a climax in the rail situation within that period:

1. The labor question, gradually growing more heated as the July 1 deadline approaches when rail management proposes to slash 15 percent from the pay checks of nearly 1,000,000 workers.

2. The depression which is expected to throw many railroads into bankruptcy courts.

Only a substantial rise in freight traffic coming with a general upturn in business can prevent the situation approaching the proportions of a national emergency, experts say.

Despite the failure of congress to provide federal aid, railroad circles expressed little disappointment that the "stop-gap" legislation proposed late in the session was not enacted. They believe that the relief would have been small and only a palliative for roads which still have some good collateral on which to borrow—and sink further in debt.

CINCINNATI REDS BECOME NEW THREAT IN NATIONAL LOOP RACE

OHIOANS SCORE IN TWO GAMES WITH BROOKLYN

Weaver, Lombardi, Goodman And Berger Join to Obtain Important Victories

NEW YORK, June 18—(UP)—Bill Terry and Charlie Grimm today took full and official cognizance of the "red menace" in the National League.

No longer can the race be considered a "two-horse" affair between the Giants and Cubs. The Cincinnati Reds have definitely established their right to recognition.

By taking a double-header from Brooklyn yesterday, Cincinnati scored its fourth straight victory and moved within a half a game of the second-place Cubs and only 3½ games behind the league-leading Giants. With big Jim Weaver pitching a four-hitter the Reds won the first game, 4-3, in 11-innings and then slugged their way to a 12-10 triumph in the nightcap.

Wally Berger Helps

Wally Berger, recent acquisition from the Giants and the Alex Kampouris deal, led Cincinnati's attack in both games, getting a double and a single off Van Mungo in the opener and collecting a homer, double and single to drive in four runs in the second. Ival Goodman hit homer No. 15 in the eleventh to win the opener after Ernie Lombardi's homer had tied the score in the ninth.

The Giants gained a game and a half on the Cubs when they beat the Cardinals, 10-3. Clydell Castleman registered his second win, allowing seven hits. Hank Leiber and Joe Moore each made four hits. Leiber hit a homer with the bases loaded, and drove in five runs. Mel Ott and Joe Moore also homered.

The Cubs drive hit a disastrous snag when the Boston Bees took them twice, 1-0 and 3-2. Jim Turner outdueled Bill Lee in the opener, with each permitting five hits. Ray Mueller's homer won the game. John Lanning, aided in the ninth by Ira Hutchinson, beat the Cubs in the nightcap. Herman's error and hits by Cooney, Garms, English and Cuccinello gave the Bees their three runs in the first inning.

A wild pitch by Al Hollingsworth recently acquired from the Reds, enabled Pittsburgh to nose out the Phillies, 4-3, in 10 innings. Mace Brown won his ninth game in a relief role. The Pirates scored their winning run on Handley's walk, a sacrifice, an infield out and Hollingsworth's pitch.

Allen Gains Eighth

Cleveland increased its American league lead over the idle Yankees to a full game by defeating the Athletics, 8-1, behind Johnny Allen's five-hit pitching. It was Allen's eighth victory. The Indians collected 12 hits, including Bruce Campbell's homer, off Ross and Edgar Smith.

Jack Wilson pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox for his seventh triumph and enabled his team to move within one game of the Yanks.

Washington and Detroit divided a doubleheader, the first going to the Senators, 12-10, and the second to the Tigers, 4-3. Al Simmons hit two homers for Washington.

Case, West and Lewis each hit one. Chet Laabs hit a pair for Detroit. Ferrell won and Auker lost in the opener; Lawson won and Leonard lost in the nightcap.

STAGEHAND AND CHIEF FAVORED IN DWYER RACE

NEW YORK, June 18—(UP)—Maxwell Howard's entry of Stagehand and The Chief was the 6-5 favorite to win the $10,000 added Dwyer stakes at Aqueduct today.

The B. F. Whitaker entry of Mythical King, and Crepe was second choice at 7-5.

It will be the first start for Stagehand since his defeat in the derby trial at Churchill May 3. The speedy Stagecraft colt, Winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby after sensational victories in the Santa Anita derby and handicap, was forced out of the Louisville fixture by a fever.

Stagehand will carry topweight of 126 pounds in the small field. opposing the Howard and Whitaker entries were Myron Selznick's Cant Wait, a 4-1 shot; and John Hay Whitney's Gentle Savage quoted at 10-1.

LAWRIN CARRIES 120 POUNDS IN INGLEWOOD RACE

INGLEWOOD, Cal., June 18—(UP)—Lawrin, Kentucky Derby victor, was a prohibitive favorite to win today's $15,000 trial stakes at Hollywood park in his first start since derby day last May 7.

Lawrin was favored by overnight odds from 1-2 to 1-10. Sharp and Ready, the brown son of Insco held distinct advantages in weights, size of field and footing.

The derby winner was weighted at 120 pounds, six less than he packed at Churchill Downs and four more than his rivals in today's mile and one-sixteenth fixture. All the other horses were weighted evenly at 116 pounds.

Conditions of the race, other than the weight advantage, appeared hand-selected for Lawrin. The small field virtually eliminated the possibility of his being boxed or bumped in the early going, and the soft, springy turf of the new and comparatively slow track was well-suited to the colt's tender feet.

The rest of the field included Bert Baroni's Specify, Bing Crosby's Rocco, Count Pan, Fire Marshal and Boss Martin. Specify was considered the only one capable of outlasting the favorite.

ST. PAUL STREAK OF WINS SPURTS AGAINST BIRDS

COLUMBUS, June 18—(UP)—The longest winning streak compiled by any team in the American Association this season today had carried St. Paul from a second division berth into a spot only two games behind the pace-setting Indianapolis Indians.

St. Paul ran its string of consecutive triumphs to 10 yesterday when it downed the hapless Columbus Red Birds in both ends of a double-header.

St. Paul took the opener 9 to 6 and the nightcap 6 to 4. A home run by First Baseman Leroy Anton with two men on base in the eighth inning provided the Saints with their winning margin in the first game. Three Columbus hurlers were unable to halt the Saint sluggers in the second contest and were rapped for 11 safeties.

Jack LaRocca put the wobbly Kansas City Blues back into the win column with a neat 4 to 3 victory over Louisville. LaRocca gave up only four hits.

Toledo and Minneapolis put on a pair of wild contests. The Millers took the opener 13 to 7 and Toledo snatched the nightcap by a 17 to 7 count.

Home runs featured the games. Five circuit drives were hit in the first game and seven in the night cap. Ted Williams, rookie outfield star of the Millers, hit three of the homers to boost his seasons total to 19.

Johnny Niggeling allowed only two hits as he pitched Indianapolis to a 3 to 0 victory over Milwaukee.

SMITH PERMITS TWO BINGLES IN 6 TO 1 CONTEST

Blue Ribbon Dairy Gains Victory Over Speedy Cain Outfit

Raymond Smith, who is rapidly becoming one of the outstanding hurlers of the recreation ball league, turned in a gem Friday evening when he put the Cain food market team, South Bloomfield, down with a single run and two lone hits. Both hits were obtained by Ansil Roof, Cain shortstop, the first going for a home run when the dairy center field was unable to nab his fly ball.

The Blue Ribbons scored six markers for themselves, two crossing in the first inning being enough to win the ball game, but four were added in the fifth to clinch the fray. The big fifth frame saw everything happen from a hit to a dropped ball by the pitcher that paved the way for three runs after one had been scored already.

Thomas tossed them for the Cain youths and did a good job except in the fifth session.

Davis' Hit Helps

The dairy's fifth inning rally were scored on Thompson's single S. Roof's error on a throw after Whaley grounded to short, and Merle Davis' single which plated both runners. He was called out after he had run to third for missing second base.

Ansil Roof's home run in the second inning made the score 2-1.

The dairy's fifth inning rally was featured by a single by Hutchinson, fielder's choice on Butler's grounder, Hutchinson being forced at second. Smith singled and Thompson doubled to right. Whaley grounded out, no advancing, but, when Thomas dropped Stevens' high fly near the foul line, another run scored. Davis and Brungs followed the singles to account for the others.

League managers met after the ball game to approve several changes in rosters. The Glitt food food market was permitted to drop Edgar McClure and Bill Steele and take on Turk Baucher and Hildeburn Martin, the former being released by the Eshelman Feeds, on whose list he had been. Purina Feeds were voted permission to add Frank Kline, dropping Lawrence Lagore and Frank Cook.

The managers voted too, to charge an admission of five cents to the bleachers, now occupied by a few paying and many more non-paying fans. After payment of the nickle fans sitting there will be excused from any other obligation, the hat not being passed in the stands.

SCHMELING AND LOUIS ATTRACT RECORD BETTING

NEW YORK, June 18—(UP)—The Max Schmeling-Joe Louis heavyweight title bout scheduled for next Wednesday was shaping up today as one of the biggest betting affairs of all time.

Jack Doyle, veteran Broadway price-maker, said that more bets are being made than ever before.

But—Doyle admitted the total amount of money risked may not exceed that which was wagered on the Louis-Baer fight in 1935. That fight, he said, established an all-time record for the amount gambled.

"In all the years I've been making prices," Doyle said, "I've never been besieged by so many inquiries on a fight—inquiries from all over the United States and foreign countries."

Doyle said that outside New York City, most of the heavy betting was coming from the far West, North-West and middle South. He quoted Louis as the 8½ to 5 favorite in hand-to-hand betting. He explained that Louis was the favorite because the men betting on him seemed willing to wager "larger chunks of money" than those favoring Max. "However," he added, "I believe there there are actually more people willing to bet on Schmeling."

Eddie Borden, another price-maker, quoted Louis as the favorite at 9-5 and 11-5 in book betting. The customer betting on Louis would put up $11 to win $5, and the customer betting on Schmeling would have to risk $5 in order to win $9.

Meanwhile, Promoter Mike Jacobs announced that a million-dollar gate was virtually assured.

WORLD RECORDS IN DANGER WITH STARS RUNNING

PRINCETON, N. J., June 18—(UP)—Several world records were in danger at Princeton's fifth annual invitation track and field meet today, but the one most likely to go was the 4:06.4 mile mark held by Sydney Wooderson of England.

Although 31 of the nation's outstanding athletes will be competing in six events, the curtain-raiser promised to be the feature—with Glenn Cunningham and Archie Sam Romani of Kansas, Josef Mostert of Belgium, Pete Bradley of Princeton, and Blaine Rideout of Texas, matching strides for four laps around the Palmer stadium cinder track.

Cunningham, who ran the fastest mile ever recorded—indoors—in 4:04.4 at Dartmouth last Winter, and San Romani are both convinced Wooderson's mark will be shattered. San Romani is convinced he can go the distance in 4:03, and intends to set his pace for that figure. If the mile record is bettered, Jack Lovelock's 3:47.8 for 1500 meters and Mostert's 3:00.4 for ¾ mile are also doomed.

Earl Meadows of Southern California, co-holder of the world pole vault mark of 14 ft., 11 in., is the big threat to explore the stratosphere above the 15-foot mark.

Competing against him are Cornelius Warmerdam, Fresno State; Bill Harding, Yale, Ralph Ross, Army, and R. F. Patterson, Princeton.

There never has been a case of genuine muntiny in the U. S. navy.

Too Much Effort Cut Golf Team's Chances

BY WILLIAM BOWMAN
Pickaway Club Professional

Why is it that so many golfers when playing at match play, do so many things wrong that they themselves can't account for it. In an analysis of our games last Wednesday at London, with one or two exceptions, no one shot their usual game. Nearly every man went many strokes over his normal game. This is partially explained by the fact that few had ever played the course before, and knew very little about what club to use or just the exact distance to go, consequently old man creek received a great many balls that could have been averted. The home players naturally had the edge in knowing every angle of the course. We will have then in the same condition when they come here to play in July. In fact, I would not be surprised if we did not get a larger margin of decision over them than they did us there.

We go to Washington Courthouse Wednesday, June 29, and I would like to see even more up there than we took to London. It is said that we had a very impressive turnout to London, and we matched them man for man, in fact one of our players had to wait for some time for the arrival of an opponent. Our players are all just itching to lock horns with the same players here, unless I miss my guess the fur is going to fly in a different direction. I hope that when we arrive over in Washington C. H. that we will just consider our match there just another golf game, not try too hard, and things will be different. We all tried the impossible in London, and when you try too hard at this game of golf, you don't do so well. However we can't defeat human nature, and that is something that is bound to happen in any form of sport, try, try and try. Let's quit trying, just make our shots as golf shots should be made, forget about what the opponent is doing, shoot our game just as near par as is possible, and if we can do this, we will emerge from the game in Washington showing a big improvement in our course. We may not be able to win from Washington there, but we can make it a closer score.

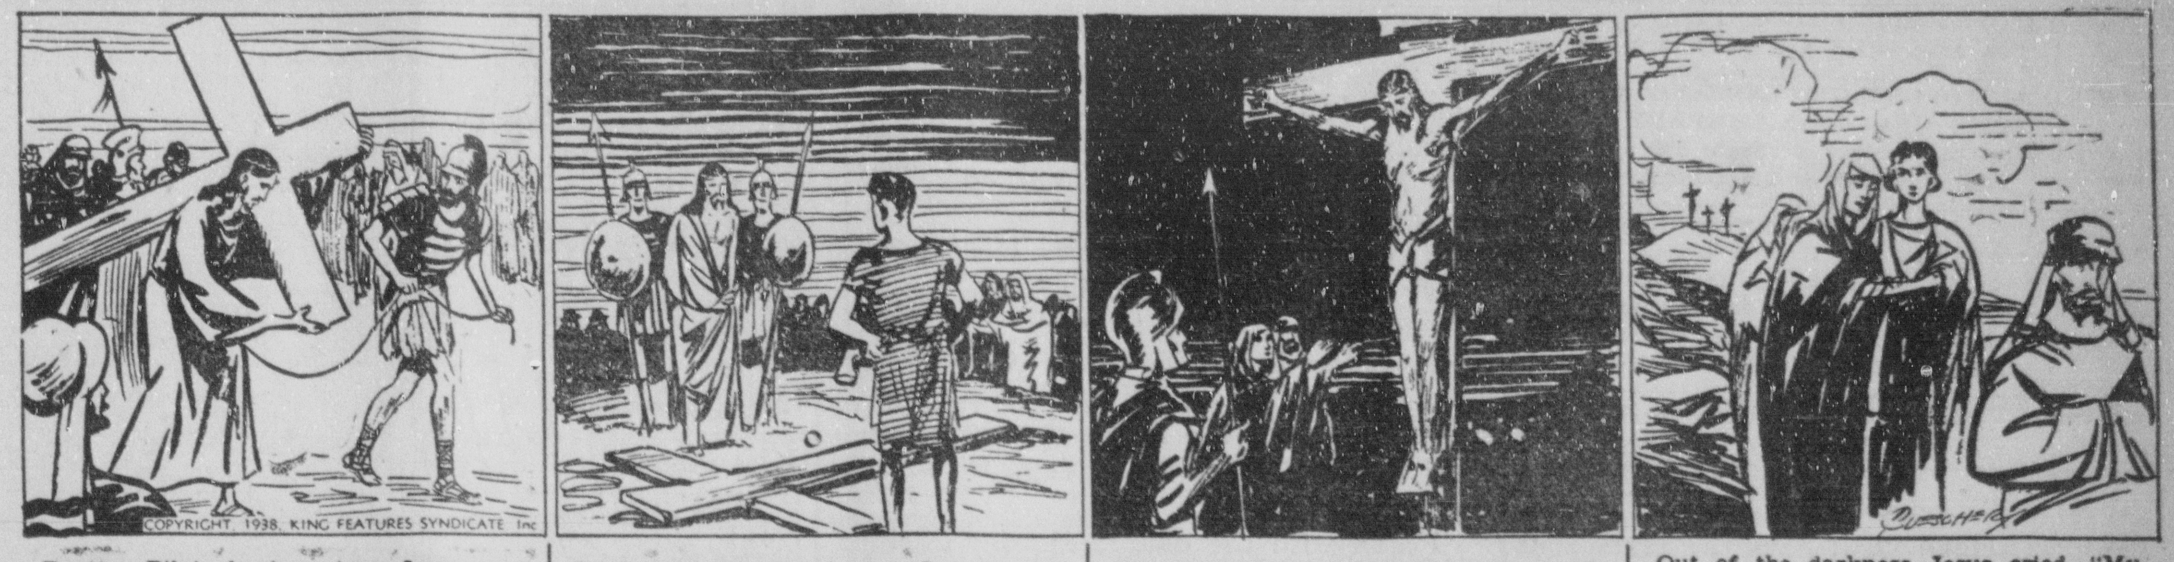
The Suffering Servant ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 15:22-39.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell
And Alfred J. Buescher



COPYRIGHT, 1938, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE Inc
BUESCHER

Pontius Pilate having given Jesus over to his enemies to be crucified, they came to the place of execution, called "Golgotha"—meaning "the place of a skull".

Pilate ordered placed over Jesus' cross the words, "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews". Two thieves were crucified with Jesus, one on each side.

During the six hours Jesus hung on the cross the mob, including the priests, mocked him, saying, "He saved others; himself he cannot save."

Out of the darkness Jesus cried, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" After his death the centurion said, "Truly this man was the Son of God." (GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 15.45).

Mark 10:45—"For the son of man also came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.

The Suffering Servant

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 19, is Mark 15:22-39, the Golden Text being Mark 10:45, "For the Son of man also came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.")

"Beneath a Syrian sky, amid a rabble cry, a Man went forth to die—for me! Thorn-crowned his blessed head, blood-stained his every tread; cross-laden,on he sped—for me! Lifted up was he to die; 'It is finished,' was his cry; now in heaven exalted high. Hallelujah! What a Saviour."

The Wondrous Cross

Six desperately long hours Jesus hung upon that cruel cross under the prophetic title Pontius Pilate wrote to sting the pride of those who drove him to crucify him. "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews" was the title which Pilate wrote more wisely than he realized, for Christ was King indeed. The chief priests also spoke as involuntary phophets when they mockingly cried out at him, "He saved others; himself he cannot save." "Let the Christ, the King of Israel, now come down from the cross that we may see and believe." Having come down from the cross by way of the open tomb and a glorious resurrection, even his crucifiers admit that men should believe on him as Christ of God.

The Authority of the Cross

Upon that wondrous cross on which the Prince of Glory died, he exercised complete authority over all the forces of life and death. He had said, "I lay down my life for the sheep; no man taketh it from me; I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power (authority) to take it again." In this God-given authority he spoke seven authoritative words from the cross: (1) "Father forgive them," a word of authority with the Father for our forgiveness; (2) "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise," a word of authority with us as sinners for our absolution; (3) "Woman, behold thy son," a word of authority to the sorrowing for our comfort; (4) "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" a word of authority with sin for its propitiation; (5) "I thirst," a word of authority with pain to endure it; (6) "It is finished," a word of authority with life to attain its goal; (7) "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit," a word of authority over death to destroy it. In the exercise of this authority our Lord was not a passive victim on the cross, but supremely active in our behalf.

The Cross and Sin

The battle was at its fiercest point when the loud cry of forsakeness came up from the bottomless pit of spiritual death, "My God, My God, why has thou forsaken me?" How that battle between the seed of the woman and the serpent resulted, all the forces of hell found out when the risen Christ of glory was "made alive in the spirit and went and preached to the spirits in prison," or, as we say in the creed, "descended into hell" and "led captivity captive," heading a great exodus from death's dominion into his presence in paradise. Easter is God's testimony to humanity as to the outcome of that decisive battle of the ages upon which we look in as we hear this agonizing cry of him who was just then being "made sin for us that we might be made the righteousness of God in him."

The Rent Veil

The effect of the cross is symbolized in God's act in rending the temple veil from the top to the bottom, for thus "the way into the holiest was made manifest" and we "have boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus."

AUSTRALIAN MARRIAGES STILL KEEP 1908 RATIO

CANBERRA (UP) — Statistics reveal that Australians are the most stable marrying people in the world.

Neither the World War, the modern pace of living nor economic crises have changed their ideas on the subject, and their marriage rate is the same as in 1908.

The latest figures show 8.4 marriages per 1,000 of population. The only countries with a higher marriage rate now are Russia, South Africa, Germany, Denmark and Rumania. Italy is lower.

Presbyterians Open Drive For Money at Church Rites

Eagleson, chairman, Mrs. A. J. Lyle, Miss Florence Dunton, Mrs. W. W. Robinson, Theodore Steele, Dr. F. C. Schaeffer, Otis Mader, Miss Bertha Bowers, Lemuel Weldon.

NO PEACE

PERSECUTION still dogs the glamorous but unfortunate Lindberghs. Even in their exile on a friendly island in the English Channel, where the colonel is engaged in scientific work with Dr. Alexis Carrel, they are getting menacing letters and feel obliged to rely on the protection of French police. The letters, it is sad to say, come from America.

These two gifted people may still do brilliant work for themselves and mankind, he as an aviator and scientist and she as an author. But whether they may live peaceful and happy lives is another question. They may feel, with one of Shakespeare's characters:

> " 'Tis better to be lowly born,
> And range with humble livers in content,
> Than to be perked up in a glistering grief
> And wear a golden sorrow."

REASON FOR FREE SPEECH

MOST Americans think of free speech from the personal angle. They do not want their own freedom of speech curtailed or their own liberty withdrawn while they sojourn in a concentration camp.

Free speech as essential to the welfare of the nation is sometimes lost sight of, particularly by patriots like Mayor Hague of Jersey City and the many men and women who obviously agree with him. This other side is emphasized in numerous opinions of the late Justice Holmes of the U. S. Supreme Court.

"When men have realized," he wrote in an important dissenting opinion, "that time has upset many fighting faiths, they may come to believe, even more than they believe in the very foundations of their own conduct, that the ultimate good desired is better reached by free trade in ideas—that the best test of truth is the power of the thought to get itself accepted in the competition of the market, and that truth is the only ground upon which their wishes safely can be carried out. That at any rate is the theory of our Constitution.

"Every year, if not every day, we have to wager our salvation upon some prophecy based upon imperfect knowledge. While that experiment is part of our system, I think that we should be eternally vigilant against attempting to check the expression of opinions that we loathe and believe to be fraught with death."

In another decision: "If there is any principle of the Constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other, it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us, but freedom for the thought we hate."

It is not a betrayal of democracy itself to be so afraid of other theories that we dare not let them be spoken or published?

FREE RIDE TO LAWYER

WASHINGTON—This year has been the most disastrous ever suffered by the circus industry in America. Four shows already have closed—Downey Brothers, Art Mix, Atterbury Brothers and Tim McCoy.

Three other railroad shows, looking for better business, have fled to Canada. At present there are only two railroad shows in the entire United States, Al G. Barnes-Sells Floto and Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey, and the latter, with an overhead cost of $14,000 a day, is doing spotty business.

Faced with the double disaster of depression plus a cold, rainy Spring, the circus managers of the country, especially in the East, turn to a man in Washington who is probably the world's foremost friends of the circus.

He is Melvin D. Hildreth, a Washington lawyer, president of the Circus Fans of America.

The D stands for Davis, and it was this name which Hildreth used as a young boy in Fargo, N. D. when he and a pal founded and managed for five years the Davis and Upsaw Circus, beginning with an admission charge of pins and graduating to pennies, then nickels.

At the height of the Davis and Upshaw business there were as many as twenty boys taking part, and almost as many in the audience. Their stunts were chiefly gymnastic, with a few stuffed animals. Hildreth's job was that of announcer, and he has been ballyhooing circuses from the side-lines ever since.

ROUTING CIRCUSES

Hildreth never has been on the payroll of any circus, has nothing to gain, not even a pass, from heading the Circus Fans of America. But there is no circus manager or old-time performer who does not know him, and this year his office has been deluged with long distance calls from frantic managers wanted Hildreth to help re-route them through more prosperous territory.

Ringling Brothers had to cancel Detroit and Cleveland because of serious unemployment there. Three circuses, Robbins Brothers, Cole Brothers and Hagenbeck-Wallace. were routed through Canada on the advise of Hildreth; while he tried to save Downey Brothers by bringing it down through the more prosperous ship-building towns along the Delaware and Chesapeake—without success. Downey Brothers has now returned to Alabama and winter quarters at the height of the mid-summer season, its animals rented out to filling stations to save the expense of feeding them.

How Your Skin Reacts Under Rays of the Sun

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SUN BATHING, which should be in full swing in a week or two, is undoubtedly of benefit to health if performed sensibly, but in order to get the full benefits out of it, an understanding of the anatomy and physiology of the skin and the action of the sun's rays is desirable.

The skin consists of a layer of tough horny cells in which there are no blood vessels. The nourishment of this layer comes entirely from below, where there is abundant blood supply, as well as fat, hair follicles, lymph, sweat glands.

The upper layer, if we could separate it entirely, would be found dry and crackly like a piece of cellophane. It is kept moist and lubricated by the secretions of the glands which pour out on its surface.

It is translucent and allows the sun's rays to seep through it, affecting the blood and fat beneath.

It is this upper layer, however, that gets sunburned. The "burn" is like any other burn, and destroys the cells. The lower layer responds to the destruction by bringing more blood to the part—that is, furnishing more nourishment to replace the destruction. That is what causes the red skin of sunburn.

If the burn is mild, the very top layer of cells is destroyed, the dead cells drop off. This is the "peel" of sunburn.

When Burn Is Deep

If the burn is deep, all the cells of the upper layer are destroyed in spots and the lymph from the lower layer of the skin fills in these damaged places, and that is the blister of sunburn.

Tan begins when the pigment cells of the skin begin to move in. The pigment of the skin resides in the lower layer of the skin. In very dark people and Negroes it may invade the lowest layer of the upper part. Pigment varies in different people and is increased or decreased according to circumstances. One circumstance which we are studying is the exposure to sun. The pigment increases and moves around, probably carried by blood, because if a piece of skin from a lighter part of the body is grafted on an exposed part, it turns darker.

Very dark skinned people have a more even distribution of pigment and, of course, more of it, and take an even tan, the despair of the freckler. But of this, more tomorrow.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. V. K.: "I am writing for a T. B. patient. This patient must live with the family. It is a case of long standing. Age 51. Not under a doctor's care now. What precautions must be taken to protect children ages 17 and 12? What care given to dishes, towels, etc.? Could patient help around the kitchen if hands properly sterilized?"

Answer: The patient should be taught to hold a paper napkin in front of the mouth while coughing and to expectorate only in a paper napkin. Pinned to the side of the bed or the chair should be a paper bag in which all of these paper napkins should be placed. The whole bag should be burned at the end of each day. The patient should have his own eating utensils and these should be kept separate from the rest of the family's and should be washed and boiled in a separate dishpan. Towels should be individual. The children should not be allowed to kiss the patient or be in the same room at night. If not under a doctor's care the county health authorities will provide vissing nurse's care or some sort of medical supervision, and they should be consulted. It is not advisable to have the patient help around the kitchen, not on account of the hands, but on account of the breath and sputum particles.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

CHAPTER 36

THE GUITAR and song held that ethereal, floating quality that music can have only at night and at a distance.

"Must be her radio or phonograph," Bill decided. Then instantly he knew it wasn't. Something about the singing voice was too natural. Moreover, it was familiar.

Anyhow it couldn't be dangerous, or important. Or indeed, any of his business. Bill turned over determinedly and shut his eyes.

That seemed to amplify the music a little, and it floated to him more clearly now, ". . . love comes, again, on wings of morning, . . . bringing, for me, a new life's dawning . . ." he unconsciously translated the Spanish words of the song. Something in the melody and the strumming was haunting. "Gripe!" muttered Bill, and got up.

He slipped on trousers and shoes, walked out a ways toward Ellen's house. The girl slept, he knew, in the main second-story bedroom. Her adobe home was a Spanish adaptation of pueblo style, suggesting those which the prehistoric peoples had built in this region centuries ago; but to her windows had been affixed balconies with iron grilles. Her side window was lighted, and he could see the form of Ellen herself silhouetted in it. He walked a ways farther, still listening, and saw the man underneath.

"Well I'll be eternally doggoned damned!" growled Bill Baron to himself. "That mug has come all the way up here just to serenade her!"

He quietly sat down on a nearby rock, oblivious of the midnight chill, and watched the romantic scene there 50 yards or so from him. He had it all straight now. Felix Montoya had done what any good Mexican boy or man is likely to do when smitten by love—he had come a-singing in the light of the stars.

The devil of it was, Felix really could sing. He had a tenor that was almost velvety, and for which a guitar was the perfect accompaniment. Bill thought some of heaving a stone at the Mexican, then running. Then he decided it would be better to lift his own voice and bray as much like a mountaineer's burro as he could, a real jackass bray. He thought of getting a lasso and dragging Felix around some in darkness. He considered walking up to him and cracking him one with a hard fist.

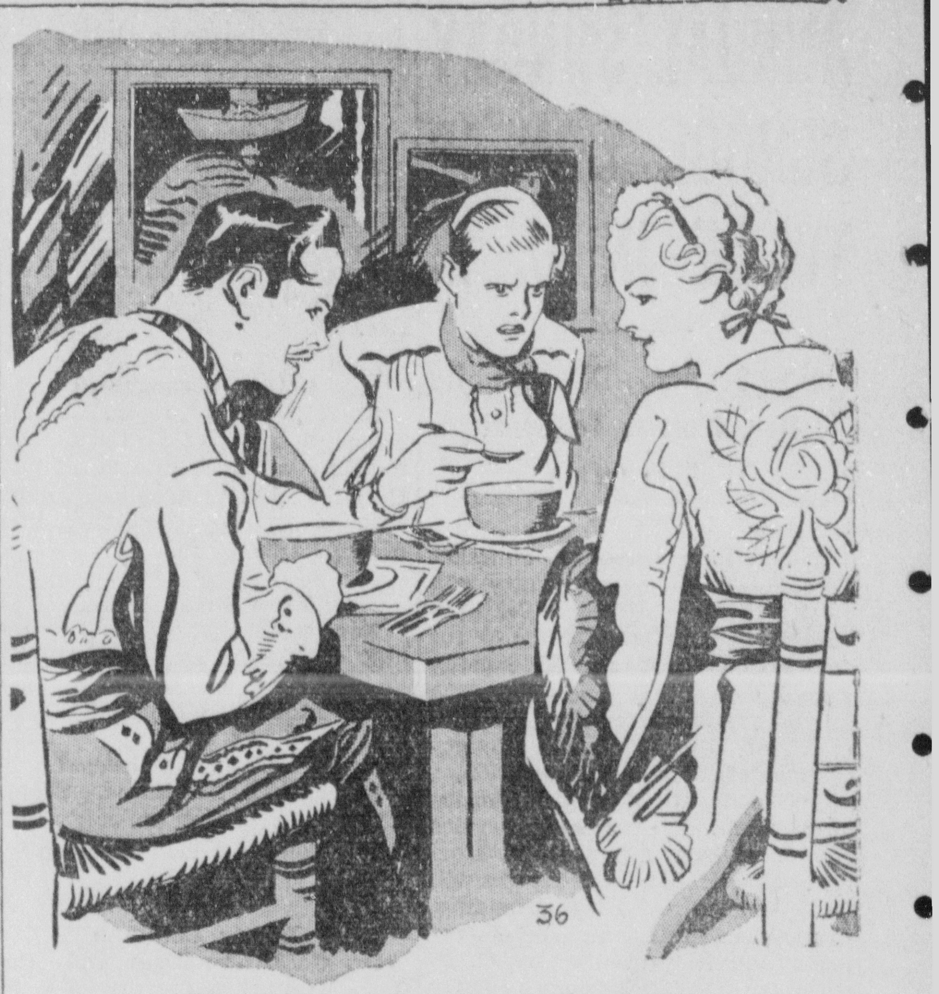
But of course he actually did none of these things. Instead, the big Texan sat on the rock there in the darkness and scowled. When Ellen laughed and applauded at the end of the first song, he could see Felix bow courteously. When she then played her part a bit farther, went inside and returned with a blossom which was one of a bouquet always kept in her room, and tossed it to Felix, Bill felt as if somebody were jabbing at his soul with a pitchfork.

He slunk on back to his room then, feeling like a teen-age kid and mad at himself for feeling so. He got back in bed, but in a minute he came to his senses and got up again, dressed hurriedly and went to Ellen's house.

"Hi, there, Felix, glad to see you!" Bill greeted the late caller. "Heard your music. Say, boy, you can sing! I envy you."

The last statement at any rate was true. And if Bill really wasn't glad to see Felix, he did not let the guest know it. Together the two men and Ellen sat up until two o'clock, talking as if they were old schoolmates. Ellen cooked up some coffee, found assorted cakes and other things to eat. Stories and jokes and music and laughter made it a gay party, and in spite of his original reactions Doctor Bill Baron had a tip-top time.

When it seemed the tactful moment to do so, Bill volunteered his own bed and apartment for the guest, and Felix accepted. The two men bade Ellen good night, went together to retire. In the darkness again—and in his double bed beside Felix—Bill grinned broadly, at himself. Anyhow, he thought as he felt sleep coming, she can't elope with him tonight!



Bill could have kicked her but he didn't.

Ellen was up with the sun and had sent the lad Pablo Rivera down to invite both Bill and Felix to breakfast. They accepted, of course.

"It is an honor to have you visit Casa Hermosa," Ellen repeated, over their grapefruit. "And to be serenaded like that—marvelous! You will stay at least a week, Felix? Say you will!"

Bill could have kicked her. But he didn't. He squelched his honesty again.

"Sure, sure!" he boomed. "You must stay, Felix. We've been building Ellen a real rancho here. Want to show you my feed experiments, and the weight tests. Wish you could have brought your parents. And your sister. We need more company here. You'll have to stay!"

Whether he meant it or not, he sounded sincere. Felix glowed under the welcome—and promptly accepted!

It wasn't so terrible, at first, Bill admitted. Felix brought a change in the routine of hard work. Bill could delegate his immediate duties to some of the other cowboys while he rode with Felix and Ellen out to see the main herd and to inspect the smaller groups of test cattle.

They dismounted in one pasture, some two miles from the house, when they came onto a tiny calf lying alone in the grass. The mother was nowhere in sight. Ellen petted the calf and talked baby-talk to it. Bill promised she should have it at home for a personal pet. He carried it home for her then, in his arms as he rode.

They inspected a site which Bill had tentatively chosen near the house for a swimming pool, to be excavated and made of natural rock in the mountain stream by next summer. Then Bill tactfully pleaded a duty with the cowboys, and left Felix and Ellen to themselves.

The two stayed together practically all the time during the ensuing days. Buckshot Brown turned positively sullen about it. Bill had to pay a diplomatic call on the old man, and suggest quietly that Felix ought to have a lot of figurative rope. Maybe, thereby, he would hang himself, Bill hoped. The guest was a little too perfect, and Ellen was bound to see a light, the two men decided.

If Ellen ever saw a light, though, she didn't indicate as much.

Felix had come in his car and miraculously brought several changes of clothing with him. For daytime wear he had the relatively simple costume of the gentleman rancher in Mexico, but at night he sartorially "went to town", as the DD cowboys expressed it.

Ellen invited the whole ranch personnel, save for the actual house servants, in for one evening of sociability in her great living room. There were half a dozen shy Mexican women, wives of cowboys, and several cowboys themselves, all ill at ease. But the assembly managed to make it a merry occasion. Felix turned out for that in a gold costume which he said was for special dances. It was a shimmery golden satin, with red flares in the bottoms of the breeches, and a red lining for the bolero jacket. He was a handsome fellow, by anybody's standards, even though Buckshot Brown confided privately to Bill that he looked like a peacock with a harem of 12 peahens.

Felix played his guitar and sang for them. Some of the other Mexicans could sing and do folk dances. Ellen seemed especially to enjoy it. Felix and others taught her a few Mexican dance steps, and she showed them a few of the routines that had made her popular on American movie screens. All impromptu, it totaled a good time.

During the two days after that, Felix seemed constantly at Ellen's side. Bill stayed clear of them, but saw them often at a distance. He had a hunch that Felix was pressing his case and he prayed that Ellen wouldn't do anything impulsive. All told, the week was a thoroughly miserable one for Bill Baron, made more miserable because he went to great lengths to conceal his misery.

He worked like a fanatic, doing the tasks of two ordinary men. A new drove of 200 cattle had been brought in from a ranch near Tucson, and Bill labored to inject them with blackleg serum, brand those that required it, weigh and measure the ones to be tested, dehorn a few, establish feeder zones, fence off measured pasturage.

Toward the end of the week one of his own cowboys who had been helping and watching him for the past few days came up to him when he was perspiring freely one mid-afternoon.

"Listen, Doc," the cowboy counseled, seriously, "you don't have to work yoreself to death just because some slick guy is setting up to yore gal. Hell, if you say the word, we'll ride the son-of-a-gun out of here on a rail!"

World At A Glance

—By— Charles P. Stewart

President Roosevelt's adverse critics are bitterly resentful of his administration's support of New Deal candidates for the senate and house of representatives in the current year's campaign.

But such support is not unprecedented.

If ever an executive chief made a strong bid for legislative support President Wilson did when he appealed to the voters to give them the kind of congress he wanted to enable him to put his post-World war program through.

The voters did not do it in Wilson's case, to be sure.

Maybe they will not cast their ballots as per "F. D.'s" request.

NOTHING NEW

Possibly (judging from President Wilson's experience) it is questionable whether or not a White House tenant is wise in electioneering for a majority of his choosing on Capitol Hill.

However, it certainly is no new thing.

It is not necessarily dictatorial, either.

England is as democratic a country as ever was, and its administrations regularly appeal to the voters, over parliament's head, whenever the lawmakers turn administratively balky. Sometimes the administration wins and sometimes not.

In a way, it is a system which insures a speedier popular response than our own, concerning pending national issues. We get our verdicts only at stated intervals. The English have an election whenever one is needed.

* * *

"GOING TO THE COUNTRY"

The English call it "going to the country".

It's a system which Woodrow Wilson believed in, as primitively democratic.

Adapting it as well as he could (which unavoidably was clumsily) to our constitution, he tried it here—and got licked.

Americans were not accustomed to "going to the country".

And neither was President Wilson—except theoretically. He thought that "going to the country" meant an administrative victory. In England it frequently does not. But English statesmen are used to such upsets. On this side of the Atlantic it was a shock.

SPEAKS IN KENTUCKY

Nevertheless President Roosevelt is taking his chances.

After attending the marriage of his son, John, to Anne Lindsay Clark at Nahant, Mass., June 18, and the anniversary of the Swedes' first American landing at Wilmington, Del., he will make two New York speeches June 30. Will they be political? They will.

July 3. Presidential speech on the field of Gettysburg.

July 8. Presidential speech at Marietta, O., celebrating the 150th anniversary of the opening of the Northwest Territory.

July 8. Presidential speech at Covington, Ky., (afternoon of the same day), undoubtedly to aid the campaign of Senator Alben W. Barkley, senate majority leader, in fight for renomination against Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

July 9. Presidential speech at Paducah, Ky., home town of Senator Barkley.

Stops at Memphis, Tenn., for a T. V. A. talk, and at Oklahoma City, to speak, presumably, in behalf of Senator Elmer Thomas, who is having a hard renomination fight.

July 10. Presidential speech at Grand River dam, near Tulsa, Okla.

OTHER SPEECHES

Scattered through, but not yet definitely dated, are presidential speeches in the Muskingum conservation District, near New Philadelphia, O.; Ft. Worth and Denison, Tex., Pueblo, Col., and in Nevada and Utah, somewhere and somewhen.

After that the president will start on his west coast South American voyage.

On this voyage he expects to visit Bogota, Colombia; Quito, Equador; Lima, Peru, and Santiago, Chile—not to mention Panama, coming back. All these capitals are inland, except Lima. This will involve some "routing."

Bolivia is pretty close to the coast, too. It will feel slighted if the president fails to make an inland trip to its capital—La Paz. As a matter of fact, Bolivia has twin capitals, but Sucre is too internal to be bothered with.

Riches Spurned for Love

Window box in shade

WINDOW BOXES placed on the north side of the house must be filled with plants which thrive in the shade. Such a box can be very interesting if planted entirely with ferns. If color is wanted, a complete range of colors can be had by planting with tuberous rooted begonias.

This Garden-Graph shows a plan for planting a window box in a shady location which offers quite a variety of flowers. The planting includes forget-me-nots, Swan River daisy, petunias, tuberous rooted begonias and nepeta hederacea.

Other plants which will thrive in a window box placd in the shade are floss flower, asparagus fern, Boston fern, elephant's ear, morning glory, trailing vinca, snapdragons and English ivy.

SUDDEN ILLNESS IN THE HOME CAN BE REPORTED TO THE DOCTOR BY 'PHONE!

Jim Went to the Cellar

Last night Jim, our next-door neighbor, went to the cellar and looked over his last year's porch furniture. His appraising eye saw all the scratches and wear given the chairs last year by the three growing boys.

Jim decided that he needed some paint and a new brush; and planned to take that furniture out in the back yard next Saturday afternoon for the annual cleaning-up process.

Curious, but men all over the country are now thinking of paint, and seeds, and outdoor games. And—a new hat, a new suit and some new shirts.

And maybe the women don't feel the urge to buy new things?

And why shouldn't they? Why be content with old things when there is money for new? Merchants are offering the latest goods of all sorts in the advertisements in this newspaper. Go to them as you would to old friends. You can rely upon their descriptions of every article.

PARKER AND SCOTT

Feg Murray turns his radio telescope on two Hollywood stars, Cecilia Parker and Randolph Scott, as the "Seein' Stars in Hollywood" feature of the broadcast on Sunday, June 19. Ozzie Nelsons orchestra plays current hit tunes, with Ozzie and Harriet Hilliard as the vocalists, in this broadcast over the NBC blue network at 6:30 p. m.

Feg has discovered that Cecilia Parker was studying for grand opera when the offer of a Hollywood contract came along. She is one of the few screen stars who were born in Canada and is a graduate of the Toronto Academy of Music. Oddly enough her great successes have been in pictures of the adventure type until her recent hit in "Judge Hardy's Children."

Randolph Scott is one of the towns most versatile leading men, moving from musicals to comedy to melodrama with equal ease. Both stars will be heard in interviews with Feg Murray.

FARM NEWS

Brief Items of Interest to Pickaway Farmers

Two cover sprays to protect apples from the first brood of codling moth will be needed in all bearing orchards. Spraying should begin about June 10 and be finished as soon as possible.

Chemists at Ohio State University say that a person who gets his eyes blackened easily may be deficient in vitamin C which toughens the walls of blood capillaries so that they do not rupture so readily.

Considerable of the area included in the dustbowl of two years ago is getting more than normal rainfall this year. Only relatively small sections in the United States were deficient in moisture at the close of the spring months.

Recent purchase of 124,000 barrels of flour by the Surplus Commodities Corporation for distribution to families on relief will move into consumption some of last year's carryover which is helping to depress farm prices for 1938 wheat.

One reason that bees do not like to work on cool or damp days is that many flowers do not furnish as much nectar in that kind of weather as they do when the days are warm and fair. A good honey crop for Ohio in 1938 is predicted by W. E. Dunham, Ohio State University.

Harry M. Combrink, Carrollton, Illinois, says he buys corn to feed hogs and cattle on his farm but that when he bought corn for 15 cents a bushel in 1932-33 he also sold his hogs on the St. Louis market for $2.80 a hundredweight so he cannot figure out how surplus corn brings prosperity to livestock men.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU-
BY BOB BURNS

I hear the word "sophisticated" used so much among the younger generation that I've decided that it must be pretty important, but to save my life, I don't know jest what it means.

I judge from the conversation that in order for a person to look sophisticated, they hav'ta have dark circles under their eyes and a night club "palor" in their cheeks. If you put one of them "lounge lizards" out in a hay field for about two months and let him get a good coat of tan, he wouldn't look sophisticated at all.

Grandpa Snazzy says if you get right down to cases a girl ain't sophisticated until she has a vanity case, a cigarette case and a divorce case.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Adapted from Erich Maria Remarque's best-seller novel of European post-war chaos, "Three Comrades," which opens as the Cliftona Theatre Sunday, presents Robert Taylor, Margaret Sullivan Franchot Tone and Robert Young in one of the most touching love stories to reach the screen.

Although the Remarque story is placed against a background of the turbulent days succeeding the world conflict in Europe, it is primarily the drama of the devout love between a man and woman. Taylor brings an increased acting power to his role of Erich, youngest of the three comrades, who returns from the front embittered and disillusioned to find new hope in his love for Patricia, stirringly enacted by Miss Sullivan.

Tone has his best part in years as Koster, who sacrifices his one love, a racing car, in order to raise the funds for Patricia's operation. Robert Young also scores a memorable part as Lenz, the comrade who becomes embroiled in a political demonstration and is killed.

AT THE GRAND

During production of her latest Twentieth Century-Fox picture, "45 Fathers," opening Sunday at the Grand Theatre, Jane Withers experienced a great thrill.

Director James Tinling had spent fifteen unsuccessful minutes rearranging lights so that Janes nose would not appear shiny in one of the picture's scenes. As a last resort, he called the makeup man and had him powder her nose.

When the powder had been applied, Jane jumped to her feet and exclaimed with glee:

"Hurray! At last I'm wearing make-up!"

Thomas Beck, Louise Henry and the Hartmans, famous satirical dancers, are featured in "45 Fathers." John Stone served as assocate producer.

California, home of many elderly folk, has the lowest birth rate of any state in the United States.

At the Cliftona

ROBERT TAYLOR and Margaret Sullavan are seen together for the first time in "Three Comrades," Erich Maria Remarque's powerful story of a post-war love, now made into a stirring motion picture, and showing on the Cliftona screen starting Sunday. The distinguished cast also stars Franchot Tone and Robert Young under the direction of Frank Borzage.

BICKERING HITS HOPES FOR OHIO RELIEF ACTION

House Refuses To Study Entire Senate Plan Pending Conference

COLUMBUS, June 18—(UP)—Prospects for legislative action next week on a compromise relief program appeared more remote today through senate insistence that the house consider the entire senate plan before putting disputed bills into the hands of conference committees.

The deadlock gripped tighter after Sen. Keith Lawrence, D., Cuyahoga, senate majority leader, refused to name senate conferees to work with house managers, on disputed financing and administrative bills until the house acts on two remaining measures in the senate program. It had been anticipated that conference committees would start work Monday.

The house will reconvene Tuesday, but Speaker Frank B. Uible flatly rejected the senate demand and announced the house would do nothing more on relief legislation "until the conference committee sits.' The senate will not meet again until Wednesday. It appeared that perhaps the entire week's time might be spent in bickering.

The senate bills thus far not considered by the house authorize subdivisions to issue notes and borrow in anticipation of 1938 and 1939 beer and liquor permit fees and empower subdivisions within a county to transfer relief funds. Both measures were sent to the house taxation committee to take their regular course.

One disputed bill for which the house named its unofficial conferees involves the tax rate to be levied against utility companies and the length of extension of this and the beer, malt, wort, and admissions taxes. Most controversial point in the administrative bill is whether state funds shall be allocated to subdivisions by the state auditor or by a relief director appointed by the governor.

SERVICES TO BE HELD FOR WRECK VICTIM, SUNDAY

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon in Portsmouth for Edwin E. Lowry, 58, who died Friday afternoon in Berger hospital of injuries received in the auto wreck June 10 at Routes 22 and 104.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

COUNT UP TO NINE

IF YOU SEE the declarer has a couple of suits which will furnish most of the tricks needed for his no trump game, it is well to count a bit. When the total you get is pretty close to nine, perhaps only one shy of it, don't blindly go ahead and set up a sure trick for him by continuing your own suit. Take a whack at the one remaining suit.

South's opening bid here was 1-Club, West called 1-Heart, North and East passed and South bid 1-Spade. North's response to this was 1-No Trumps, and when South rebid his clubs, North jumped to 3-No Trumps.

East led the heart 7 and West immediately cashed his three high hearts and led a fourth heart to clear the suit. The fact that he had no entry to cash the remaining heart, as well as the fact that he set up what apparently was a very necessary trick for North, never seemed to occur to him. He had a splendid chance to wreck the contract by switching to the diamond Q, as the dummy's cards made the contract seem very likely unless his side could find a weak spot in diamonds.

That play could have given his side seven tricks before North could have gained control.

Copeland, New Deal Foe, Dead

York, expressed regret at the passing of Senator Copeland. But prominent members of the medical profession and the many friends he had acquired throughout the country as a result of his syndicated newspaper columns on health mourned the death of Dr. Copeland.

As senior senator from New York he had held many important committee assignments and during the last few weeks of the last session of congress had served on eight conference committees seeking to reconcile differences between senate and house versions of legislation. Much of his effort had been devoted to obtaining passage of the Copeland-Lea pure food and drug law which he had advocated for five years.

At the time of his death he was planning to begin a special committee investigation into subversive and un-American activities in the merchant marine.

Chesley W. Jurney, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, completed arrangements for Copeland's body to be taken to New York. He announced that the senator's wife, Mrs. Frances Spalding Copeland, and his only son, Royal S. Jr., would accompany the body on the 10 a. m. train of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Vice President John Nance Garner and House Speaker William B. Bankhead will name a congressional committee to attend the funeral services. Garner, who left the capital Thursday, will select the delegation at his Uvalde, Tex., home.

Second Solon To Die

Copeland was the second member of the 75th congress to die shortly after adjournment. Rep Allard H. Gasque, D., S. C., died early Friday in Walter Reed hospital after a brief illness.

First indication that Copeland was ill came Wednesday afternoon when he collapsed on the senate floor. It had not been generally known, however, that his illness was serious, but his physicians said that his condition had grown rapidly worse until last night.

National Democratic Committee Chairman James A. Farley, who threatened Copeland with administration opposition in his campaign for reelection in 1934, praised him as "an outstanding citizen of New York City and state. In his passing we lost the services of an honest and intelligent public official."

A lifelong conservative, Copeland was elected to the senate Nov. 7, 1922 and has served continuously since. Prior to becoming senator he served four years as health commissioner of New York City.

In New York City he was an important member of Tammany Hall's "old guard." Last year he was Tammany's candidate for mayor, but lost in the primaries to Jeremiah T. Mahoney, who, in turn, lost the election to Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia.

Mrs. Copeland and their son were at the bedside when death came.

News of his death brought the following expressions of condolence to Mrs. Copeland from the President at Nahant, Mass., where he will attend his son's wedding today:

"We have been greatly shocked to hear of the senator's sudden death. Mrs. Roosevelt joins me in sending to you our very deep sympathy."

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York was "inexpressibly shocked." At Albany he said that "I have no doubt but that the strain and continuous work which he carried on at the congressional session which has just ended hastened his death."

Lehman declined to discuss plans for appointing a successor to Copeland. It was believed that he might not do so since there probably will not be another session until after the regular state elections this Fall.

Almost since the inception of the New Deal, he had fought its social reform and spending program. He played major roles in the defeat not only of the court bill, but also of the executive department reorganization bill this year.

Joined Sen. Bailey

He was among the first of the little band of conservative Democrats about six months ago who signed a petition, circulated by Sen. Josiah W. Bailey, D., N. C., to rally the "old liners" into an effective bloc to return to the "old order of democracy."

McCall is shown, left, on the stand in Miami court telling his story to Judge H. F. Atkinson, who heard the case without a jury.

G. O. P. LEADERS SAY CONGRESS' JOB NOT ENDED

WASHINGTON, June 18—(UP)—Charles L. McNary, R., Ore., minority leader of the senate, and Bertrand H. Snell, R., N. Y., minority leader of the house, in a joint statement today charged that congress had abandoned its obligation to the American people by adjourning at this time.

"We believe it to be the first duty of congress to remain in Washington and adopt measures to alleviate the paralysis of business and halt the downward spiral of economic forces engulfing the country," the statement said.

"We have so contended for many months, proposing specifically the steps which should be taken. But the pleas and proposals of the house and senate Republicans have been in vain . . .

"It is with the keenest regret and aversion that we now witness a bitter fulfillment of the warnings that we have issued. The planned Roosevelt recovery has, as we warned, become the Roosevelt depression."

ley. The maid of honor wore peach net, while the bridesmaids wore hyacinth blue. They carried blue delphiniums, and yellow and peach colored gerbera.

The flower girl, Joan Clark, 10, sister of the bride, carried an old-fashioned bouquet with French silk and lace holder.

John wore a white gardenia in the lapel of his morning coat. The ushers of whom his brothers James and Elliott were two wore white carnations. The church was decorated with white flowers, ferns and green branches.

At the conclusion of the church services, the bridal couple, attendants, President and Mrs. Roosevelt and others motored to the Nahant Club, where a reception was given for 800 persons. Later they attended the wedding breakfast for 36 members of the family and the wedding attendants. The bride's table at the latter function was smothered in white early Summer flowers.

The couple was scheduled to depart at 4:30 p. m. on a short wedding trip. Later in the month, however, they will go to Europe for two months. They will return in August and John will go to work as a member of a Boston advertising firm. They will live in Brookline.

The estate is estimated at $14,500, including real estate of $9,500. The sons are executors.

Crisis More Important As July 1, Date For Slash In Pay, Approaches

out the major evils of the industry is the only legislative action which will be of material help, railroad officials said.

Speculation already is current that President Roosevelt will have to call a special session of congress to provide that type of remedy.

Statements made in the last few days by two members of the Interstate Commerce Commission point to the fact that main cause of the present critical railroad situation is the bitter competition between rails, highway carriers, air transportation, waterways and pipelines.

"Competition is a form of warfare, and in warfare some one gets hurt," Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman said recently. "Weakened by the present and immediately preceding depression in business, the railroads are staggering under this competitive barrage and in grave financial distress."

Commissioner Balthasar H. Meyer was no less emphatic:

"The state legislatures and congress alone can determine the basis upon which this competitive struggle shall be conducted," he said.

Both recommended establishment of a federal agency to regulate that competition, to weed out that part which is undesirable, and leave only the elements best equipped to serve the best public interest.

COURT RECORDS IN McCALL CASE GO TO GOVERNOR

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 18—(UP)—The fight for the life of Franklin Pierce McCall, condemned kidnaper and killer of five-year-old Jimmy Cash of Princeton, Fla., shifted today to Florida's state capital.

With McCall in "death row" at the Raiford state prison farm for safekeeping and to await the penalty of death in the electric chair ordered by circuit court in Miami for the kidnaping, the court records in McCall's case were delivered to Gov. Fred P. Cone here.

Cone must sign a death warrant before McCall can be executed. The governor also fixes the week for carrying out of any death sentence.

The 99-page transcript of court action against McCall was turned over by Cone to Attorney General G. C. Gibbs, who was asked to report on its legality.

Cone said he had not yet heard from C. A. Avriett, Jasper attorney acting for McCall's mother, brother and sisters, about an effort to obtain commutation of the abductors death sentence to one of life imprisonment.

JAPANESE REPORT SOVIET ATTACK ON MANCHUKUO

TOKYO, June 18—(UP)—The Domei (Japanese) news agency reported today that 30 Soviet border guards near Hungchun had made a machine gun attack on 20 Manchukuo patrol guards.

Both sides were later reinforced and, so far, neither had retreated, the dispatch said. One Manchukuan was killed.

on June 2, 1935. That was his last major league appearance.

When he left Boston following a disagreement with Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the team then known as the Braves, Ruth said:

"I'm not through with baseball. At least I hope I'm not."

Ruth never again was connected with the game from that day on, although he had dickered with many clubs for various positions.

Ruth, whose top salary was $80,000 a year for 1930 and 1931, broke into major league baseball in 1914 as a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox. He was traded to the Yankees in 1920 and stayed with them through the 1934 season. Then he signed with the Braves for $25,000 annually on a three-year contract as a player, assistant to Manager Bill McKechnie and vice-president. It was said he could be manager the following year if he wanted.

But Ruth's name failed to increase attendance in Boston and on June 2, 1935, he quit the team after a dispute with Fuchs.

During his career Ruth hit 714 home runs, including those of six world series. He hit 60 home runs in 1927, the most ever hit by any man in the major leagues.
